WOODSTOCK COLLEGE IS IN JUNIOR WOSSA RUGBY

WOODSTOCK, Sept. 29.—An error was made in the drawing up of the W. O. S. S. A. senior rugby schedule, which brought the Woodstock Collegiate team into competition with London Central Collegiate.

The information was officially given out here today that the Collegiate team is not entered in the senior series, but has joined the senior group and is anticipating a large number of last year's players.

The Collegiate team is preparing for coming Hough cup series and has been drawn against the Stratford Collegiate. A large number of last year's players are available for the eleven this year and with plenty of new material chances are bright that the college team will top the time honored silverware.

Ship Epinarad To Latonia Tomorrow

French Turf Star Will Meet Larkin and Wise Counsellor At 1/4 Miles October 11

NEW YORK, Sept. 29.—Larkin, winner of the International Special at Aqueduct on Saturday, Epinarad, the colt which he beat by a nose, and Wise Counsellor, which finished third in the big race, will be shipped on Wednesday to Latonia to take part in the third race of the series over the Latonia course on October 11. It is doubtful, but not improbable, that Zev will be shipped this week, and the Suller stable, which will carry the colors of the Lexington stable.

Interest in the third race of the series has been greatly increased as a result of the race on Saturday, when Epinarad was the favorite and Larkin was the second choice. The race is regarded as the French champion and his chance to win the final race of the series and especially since the third and final race is over a distance of a mile and a quarter.

It was generally conceded that at the finish on Saturday Epinarad was going fast enough to have beaten Larkin in another stride or two. However, Clarence Kummer, who rode Larkin, declares that Larkin ran a race that was not apparent on the surface.

Kummer says that Larkin ran badly for the first quarter of a mile, got his feet tangled up and could not get started right. Kummer, who undoubtedly outrode Epinarad and O'Donnell, who took the mount on Wise Counsellor, first took Larkin on the outside, then moved off Wise Counsellor and ran him practically out of the race and still had enough left to withstand the terrific challenge that Epinarad made in the last 50 yards.

There's one thing you can say in favor of Larkin. Nobody has a right to worry about keeping him. Epinarad, however, was a colt on a plaster in his life.

Despite the peculiarity of his name, Epinarad, Washington third baseman, always heaved a cork plaster in his life.
