MIKE'S AGE

"Pat O'Connor is now just one and one third times as old," broke in the Chief Sergeant, "as he was when he built the pig sty under his drawing room window."

"Pardon the interruption," said Simon, "but why on earth did he build a sty under his drawing room window?"

"Why to keep pigs in, of course. Let us start again! Pat O'Connor is now just one and one third times as old as he was when he built the sty, and little Mike, who was forty months old when Pat built the sty, is now two years more than half as old as Pat's wife, Biddy, was when Pat built the sty, so that when little Mike is as old as Pat was when he built the sty their three ages combined will amount to just one hundred years. How old is little Mike?"
