

OBITUARY.

MR. PETER LYALL, well known in Canadian contracting circles, died at his home in Montreal recently. He was president of the Peter Lyall Construction Company, and connected with many other interests. Mr. Lyall was born in Caithness, Scotland, seventy-one years ago. He was early apprenticed as a stone mason and after thoroughly mastering his trade he came to Canada in 1870, beginning business under the auspices of his cousin, Peter Nicholson. Six years later he founded the contracting business which bears his name, and with which his three sons, William, Traill and Peter, Jr., are associated. This firm has developed until to-day it is unquestionably the largest construction company in the Dominion.

MR. GEORGE CRADDOCK, a well-known architect of London, Ont., died at his home in that city on November 16th last. He designed many of London's buildings.
