THE ACCIDENT Insurance Company,

OF NORTH AMERICA.

COR. ST. JAMES &amp; MCGILL STS., MONTREAL.

ACCIDENTS AND THEIR LESSONS.

Accident Insurance is as yet far from being as universal as it should be. Nobody with ordinary forethought should think of going even a short journey without his "quarter" of Accident Insurance. The "quarter" is not missed; it is a mere drop in the bucket of his expenses; yet, how very useful it is should be injured, or how grateful would be the $4,000 it insures to his widow or relatives, if he should be killed. And it is by no means rare for people to be injured or killed; it is just as likely to happen to one as to another; it is no use saying, "I am always careful." When you are travelling you are not in your own charge; all you can do won't prevent a drawbridge or a switch being open, a broken rail or a "wash-out," a defective axle, a weak bridge, an obstruction on the track, or a collision; and when you are rushing along at 50 or 60 miles an hour these thoughts do sometimes arise, and it is comforting to feel that you have made what provision you could against the result of any such misfortune; or when even the train is at a standstill, and you calmly sleeping in your Pullman berth, you little know what risk you are running of being shattered to atoms by the accidental explosion of a car-load of dynamite, vigoris, or other combustible lying alongside you on the siding; or from a pilot engine or some extra train backing down on you through an open switch—all the result of a little mistake or carelessness on the part of the not always over-intelligent persons in charge of your safety, the most trifling misunderstanding or oversight on whose part may cause disaster to you. At sea, again, or on the river, you cannot avert a fire or a collision, a storm or sunken rocks in the water, or icebergs; you cannot control the reliability of the machinery, or an explosion, whether of the boiler or of what may form part of the cargo. Spontaneous combustion has been known to arise from very simple causes in this respect. Any of these may consign the most careful to eternity in a few moments. You are not under your own care, but in another's power, the slightest error of judgment on whose part may cause your death or serious injury and as every man is generally for himself in such an emergency, so should every man provide for himself against the result of an emergency, when it costs him so little.

It seems against all reason that a man, going to travel, no matter where, should have virtually to say, when leaving his loved ones, "It may be forever, 'Well, good bye! I have provided for everything that I know of—my own comforts and little indulgences, and all the necessities to make my trip a pleasant and prosperous one.—BUT, I have not made any provision for you in case I should never return; it's true it wouldn't cost much, but then I've spent so much upon myself that I can't spare the trifle it would take to protect and provide for you should anything befall me!" What a frame of mind to start on your journey in! and what a noble example of your protectors to leave impressed on the loved ones who have only you to look to, to care for and provide for them! Be advised therefore. Start with a clear conscience in this respect, and on no occasion travel without including in your bill of expenses the mite which will provide an INSURANCE AGAINST ACCIDENT.
