

These undertakings are in keeping with the spirit of mutual understanding and forbearance which has characterized and will continue to characterize the efforts of the two governments in addressing transfrontier pollution matters.

The United States Government looks forward to early discussions with the Government of Canada following the report to Governments of the International Joint Commission.

Department of State Washington, February 18, 1977