My dear Currie,

The following is an extract from a letter written on various matters by Arnold Plant, Professor of Political Economy at the University of Cape Town, to the Editor of the "Round Table". As it is just a casual observation at the end of a long letter it is good testimony to the value they set on Clarke at the Cape:

..."Clarke has left to-day for Southern Rhodesia. I am glad he has been able to get away from Cape Town for a while. It is not pleasant to be making preparations for one's departure after being such a pillar of an institution as he has been of this University".....

Yours ever,

D. Curtis.
