

lle Mountain, on the St. John's. The old
the gloomy nunnery, high walls, and the
on the shore of the urope.

ce and the Lakes have ason, by the emigrants much so as to render unpleasant." And such observed in these cartourists, who occasionects before their eyes, ouble of leaving home.
marked, there has been f intelligent and wealthy rn states have had the to their population. But vked with necessary inns, to direct their course ne person might be heard y through which he was er been in a geography at best but extremely ill which the English school such an accomplishment. at the same time leave un-y of the emigrants might money they bring out, if estions as the boys in the readily answer, and act on One woman you will hear ildren, who have come to turn to-morrow; one sick, ealthy; another amazed at ountry, the friendliness of work, the high wages, the t, the superiority of every e only wonder to me was,

View from the St. Lawrence