

head and front of the corporation lawyer's offending seems to be that he makes money, wears a coat of good cloth, and rides instead of walks. It seems to be considered to be in some mysterious way unprofessional for a lawyer to serve artificial rather than natural persons and to reckon his income in thousands instead of in dollars. It is, of course, true that there are some disreputable corporation lawyers. But it is also true that the corporation lawyer, equally with all other lawyers, is amenable to the punishment meted out by the Bar to members who fail to live up to its best traditions, and that he is equally desirous of earning the esteem of his brother lawyers, and equally afraid of incurring their contempt.

Well, no matter what the other fellow may say while things are running smoothly, the moment he gets in a tight place or the moment he is confronted with a troublesome problem, or the moment he feels the need of some one to trust, he hies him straightway to the lawyer.

"For it's Tommy this, an' Tommy that, an' 'Chuck him out, the brute!'
But it's 'Saviour of 'is country,' when the guns begin to shoot."

—Law Notes.

A point of interest in reference to criminal jurisdiction was referred to in a note of a case Rex v. Warden of Dorchester Penitentiary, ante, p. 358, which note, however, did not quite accurately bring out the point decided. The judgment of Mr. Justice White, who spoke for the court, decides that a police magistrate acting under s. 777 of the revised Criminal Code (formerly s. 788) has the same territorial jurisdiction as the General Sessions in Ontario; and consequently a police magistrate of the City of Halifax has power to hear and decide for an indictable offence of burglary committed in that part of the Province of Nova Scotia. The judgment in the above case was decided on the ground that as s. 777 confers the same jurisdiction on police magistrates as that possessed by the General Sessions of the Peace in Ontario, which court by s. 577 (formerly s. 640) has jurisdiction over the entire province, then such magistrates have a like discretion.
