

THE Palace Hotel.

THE PALACE HOTEL, 4 King Street West, Cullen & Dungan.—Palace Hotel is fitly represented by its name, for it is indeed a palace in every sense of the word. It is one of the oldest houses in Ontario, is surrounded by refinement, conservative management and progressive ideas. Everything is up to the moment, furnishings are exquisite, service ideal, every guest shown special attention, meals fit for a king and a bar that excels in every respect. It is said to be the finest bar in Canada, and no one disputes the claim. For a generous, wholesome, well cooked meal, this is the place to go. For an entrancing and delightful hour there is no place in Hamilton equal to the Palace bar. Brilliant lights, cut glass, polished mahogany, art ceilings, tile floorings and faultless service and convivial companionship is the feature of the place. The proprietors are men who know how to keep the house on an elevated plan and cater to a trade that appreciates the same.

W. H. WODEHOUSE, Stock Remedies.—Among the men that have reached distinction through uprightness and honor Mr. Wodehouse deserves special mention. He has been handling this product, of his own invention, four years in Hamilton, and is distinctly in the lead as compounder and dealer. This food or invigorator is all it claims to be and more. Its merits have been proven by stockmen of the land and something new is continually being said about it. Mr. Wodehouse stoops to nothing disloyal in advertising his goods, states plain facts, and is not afraid of any test you may give it. He is one of the men who is striving to better the condition of the world, and is a balance wheel in the promotion of animal culture and protection. His neighbors have fully expressed their appreciation of his efforts in open demonstration, and his name stands for honor wherever it is spoken. If the trade shroud knew how his word is esteemed at home they would not question any statement in his printed matter.

STOCK YARDS HOTEL, Wm. H. Daniels, Proprietor.—People who travel soon learn to appreciate careful attention and hospitality, which is to be obtained at a first-class hotel. The tide of travelers who are attracted to the stock yards find no better place in our city than the Stock Yards Hotel. This house is conveniently located, comfortably furnished and excellently managed. Mr. Daniels has been in the hotel business for nearly fifteen years, and has mastered every detail of his trade. He has been the proprietor of this house for six years, and the large patronage he has built up is sufficient evidence of his renown as a model host. His 48 guest rooms are always in demand, and their spacious dining room is popular with every guest. Tables are spread with the delicacies of the season. A billiard parlor adds to the pleasure of the guest, and a model barber shop is found in connection with the house, while at a first-class bar choice wines, liquors and cigars are dispensed. Mr. Daniels has spent most of his life in our city and is a loyal citizen.

tion nine years ago, which has been a popular cigar stand in Hamilton for fifty years. His cigars are winning cards, and trumps that are never turned down. His special brand is "Webber's Special 5 Cent Cigar," and is regarded by many as the best made in Canada. His store is the popular resort of the city, where smokers linger for a social hour and rest easy while smoke curls round their heads. Mr. Webber's cigars give pleasant dreams and bring back memories dear.

THE MONARCH TYPEWRITER CO., 14 Main Street East.
G. A. Evans, Manager.—Some things are a luxury, some a necessity. The day for arguing the need of typewriters is past. The question is, Which is best. Those who know fine points in a machine give the praise to the "Monarch Visible," because it more fully meets the demand for a perfect machine than any yet invented. Something better may follow, but this is the best now. They combine simplicity, visible writing, durability and easy action, which is all important. The machine has had a marvelous acceptance, but it is not surprising when we study the reason. Mr. Evans manages the affairs of the company with perfect knowledge and success, and is always ready to explain the merits of the machine with convincing facts. They carry typewriter furniture and supplies, all of which are of high value and up-to-the-day in convenience and invention.

T. E. KIRK, The Woodbine, Restaurant.—Mr. Kirk established this place five years ago, and has put energy, vim and good judgment behind his efforts. No place in the city has drawn a more profitable patronage or reflects more credit on the manager than this bar and dining-room. From front to rear it is furnished with the best of taste, wisely managed, and represents the best ideas of 20th century dining-room and bar service. A general air of refinement surrounds the place, everything is in perfect order, every guest shown the courtesy they deserve, and the reputation of the place is beyond reproach. Mr. Kirk is a native of Hamilton, public spirited in the highest sense, and one of the useful citizens of the town.

FRANK F. HUMPHREY, Market, 6 King Street West.—Mr. Humphrey is the fish man of the town and keeps the bon-ton market of the city. It is both a wholesale and retail market, and is always full of fresh, wholesome, high class merchandise. He gets sea food from first hands, poultry and vegetables from the best markets, is prepared to handle them right, knows how to buy, and is always ready to accommodate a customer. His prices are consistent with the market, every order filled promptly, nothing stale or second hand mixed in with fresh goods. There is not a market in town which so fully meets the demand of the day as this.

M. W. ATWOOD & SON, Jewelers, 88 King Street West.—In 1857 the father of the present proprietor established this business and kept pace with the march of commercial advancement through every decade. As a jeweler J. A. Atwood is acknowledged superior, as a business man his integrity is unquestioned. He carries a choice line of jewelry and merchandise, heavy stock of diamonds and unmounted jewels, and the most attractive line of silverware in the city. He has been raised in the business and knows every item touching the jewelry trade in any sense. He is a man of original and practical ideas, refined and exquisite taste, and shows in the selection of every article he handles the eye of an artist. Mr. Atwood is popular in business and social circles and has the interest of the city at heart.
