LATE LOCALS. The Portland Methodist Sunday School picnic is being held today at Watter's Landing. The new steamer Yale, Captain Pike, arrived at 7.30 o'clock this morning from Boston, direct, and landed 563 passengers. Officer Sewell Smith, of the I. C. R., went to Norton Saturday night to visit relatives and word has been received that on his arrival there he was taken quite ill. A large, new safe, weighing about 6,000 pounds, was hoisted up into the third story of the New Brunswick Telephone Company's building this morning by Samuel J. Dunlop. A special meeting of the outing committee of Branch 134, C. M. B. A., will be held this evening to make final arrangements for their basket picnic to be held July 23 at Watter's Landing. In referring to the beautiful appearance of the public gardens and the excellent work done there the Times through an error gave the wrong name of the garden. The man to whom credit is due is Gardener A. J. Stephenson. W. H. Dunham, Main street, received word this morning of the serious illness of his wife at Carter's Point, where she is living for the summer. Mr. Dunham went up river to the Point this afternoon on the S. S. Champlain. Liquor License Inspector John B. Jones, has summoned Louis Green, proprietor of the Ottawa Hotel, to appear in court to answer a charge of liquor selling in a hotel on Sunday last. It is understood that Dr. A. W. Macrae, K. A win for the Marathons will tie them for first place and a good game is expected. The marriage is announced to take place on Wednesday, July 24, of Miss Jessie E. McLean, daughter of Mrs. Annie E. McLean, Elliott Row to Frank S. Bonnell, of Vancouver, B. C., son of F. S. Bonnell, inspector of the Northern Life Assurance Co., of this city. Mr. Bonnell is engaged in real estate business on the Pacific coast and Miss McLean was until recently on the teaching staff of the Aberdeen school. Mrs. Rebecca Campbell, whose daughter, Nellie, disappeared from her home, Somerset street, Saturday night, was anxiously enquiring from those about the Union depot today if anyone could give her any information about the whereabouts of the child. She learned from a little girl a first-class ticket for Moncton Saturday night, and the description of the child who made her purchase answered to that of Nellie Campbell.

THE COLLINS TRIAL. To the Editor of Daily Times: Sir—I was much struck with a suggestion made in your editorial remarks 13th inst. It seems specially important taken in connection with a rumor made at the time the verdict in the Collins murder case was rendered, viz., that the jury during their deliberations spent much of their time discussing "capital punishment," a subject which had as much to do with the case and their oath as the Japanese-American complication or situation at the present stage. From wherever or whatever source this rumor originated, as it is general and widespread, it would be eminently right and proper for the twelve men who tried this case to come out with an emphatic denial that any such discussion took place, but that they, thoroughly appreciating their position and their oath, did well and faithfully try the case and render a verdict according to the evidence. JUSTICE.

BROTHERS IN MISERY. How Two Aldermen Levied On the Larder of a Third When They Were Hungry. Two members of the city council are very seriously considering the advisability of becoming country gentlemen and purchasing or renting their own villas in some seclusion retreat far from the maddening crowd. The desire for a country home is of recent birth and grew out of an excursion to a picnic boat which did not connect, an impromptu meal hastily garnered from the larder of a brother alderman (who is a suburbanite) and a few hours peace and quiet on the banks of the beautiful St. John. But the story is worth telling in all its details. On July 12th, while certain members of the Orange order were celebrating at Watter's Landing on the river, the victory of King William, another famous river, two members of the city council decided to participate in the festivities. Both aldermen passed the time they had brought their legal minds to focus properly upon the proposed outing the picnic boat had departed. Consequently they decided to fare forth on one of the regular boats, to meet the picnic party and return to the city with them. But the best laid plans of mice and men gang aft a-gley, and so it was in this case. The boat bearing the two aldermen and the cargo, (big pardon, the boat's crew) passed the picnic boat on the river so the aldermen were unable to join the party. They were put ashore at a convenient landing and as the hour had arrived for the evening meal they felt hungry. Now to be stumped out on the bank of a river several miles from home and supper is enough to faze even an alderman, but with the keen foresight which comes from intimate association with the great minds of city hall they soon decided upon a way out of the dilemma. Another alderman was the possessor of a country home at Westfield, those two pilgrims were hungry and weary. All aldermen are brothers. Brilliant thought. The wayfarers would continue to wayfar even unto Westfield where their more fortunate brother should feel them. And they did. So did he, but was not aware of it until afterwards. For he was in the city when the hungry ones reached his home. Nevertheless they presented their cards, were cordially received by some young ladies who were there and soon they had an excellent meal before them. They ate, likewise they smoked and although the aldermen whose hospitality they accepted is popularly supposed to be averse to the weed his guests were not so particular. Now there was an important meeting of the board of works scheduled for that evening and the belated picnicers were eager to attend. At first they thought of driving to Fairville and their host's house was hitched. Then they decided to come in by train and the horse went back. They did come by train, and arrived at City Hall just in time to cordially thank Mr. Hiram Day for a particularly inspiring address the most of which had been delivered while they were still in the woods. But is a country home for each of them next summer.

ROUGHING IT WITH AN AUTO. Dr. R. I. Robertson Tells of a Memorable Advertising Tour. Dr. R. I. Robertson, who returned to the city Saturday after a week's tour through Kings and Queens counties in his new advertising auto, had many interesting experiences, and it is probable that many of the farmers in the districts through which he traversed will remember that auto for some time. Dr. Robertson was engaged advertising the big sale to be held in Oak Hall commencing Thursday morning, and he was distributing dodgers and putting up signs telling of the offerings. The tour took in Louis Lomond, whence to Rothsay and on up to Hampton, Norton, and down through the Bellefleur and along the river back to St. John. In many places the machine was completely to go through roads where the mud was four feet deep and on several occasions the doctor and chauffeur had to get out and push and sometimes get assistance to get over some particularly bad bits of road. Nearly all the horses in the countryside were pretty well scared, and many of the farmers are vowing vengeance on the machine if it ever shows up in their vicinity again. Through they had some very bad roads to navigate, the machine escaped practically without damage until they were nearly home, when in going over a slight bump the front axle was broken. They were able, however, to limp into town under the slow speed gear. One of the experiences he had was to ride over a ten foot embankment, but luckily they escaped without damage on that occasion. One old farmer, who saw an auto, for the first time, was given a spin in the machine that he will remember as long as he lives. He said he never expected to go so fast again. At the Willows, where a stop was made for dinner, one day, one of the horses which Mrs. McCormick, the proprietress, assured Dr. Robertson was not afraid of an auto, got a "brain storm" when the "devil wagon" started up and did a ten mile running start before he stopped. He was found by the hired man the next day and taken home. Dr. Robertson thinks the next time he goes through that section of the country he will put the high gear on and just hit the high places, or else he will load up with accident insurance in case of need. Crops of all kinds are reported good in the section traversed and with any kind of favorable weather the yield in all lines should be equal if not better than last year.

HE GOT A DUCKING. Duncan Chambers who paid an $8 fine for drunkenness at yesterday's session of the police court got a ducking early this morning that might have cost him his life. According to the police, no sooner had Duncan regained his liberty than he again sought solace in the cup of joy and about 4.30 o'clock this morning wandered to Long Wharf, where he fell into the water. His shouts attracted the attention of Policeman John J. Smith, who with the assistance of George Burgess and Oscar Roberts managed to land the unfortunate man once more on terra firma.
