WONDER IN WELLAND!

A Representative Farmer

MR. C. C. HAUN. MR. C. C. HAUN.

The following remarkable facts are fully certified to as being undeniably correct in overy particular. Mr. Haun is well known in the vicinity, having resided here over fifty years, and is highly respected as a man of the strictest honor, whose word is as good as his bond.

As will be seen from his letter, four physicians had attended him, and it was only after he had given up hope of cure that he decided to try Burdook Blood Bitters on the recommendation of a neighbor who had been cured of a similar.

neighbor who had been cured of a similar disease by its use. Mr. Haun writes as follows:

DEAR STRS,—I think I have been one of the worst sufferers you have yet heard of, having been six years in the hands of four of dur best doctors without obtaining permanent relief, but continually growing worse, until almost beyond hope of recovery, I tried your Bitters and got relief in a few days. Every organ of my body was deranged, the liver enlarged, hardened and torpid, the heart and digestive organs seriously deranged, a large abscess in my beck, followed by paralysis of the right leg, in fact the lower half of my body was entirely useless. After using Burdock Blood Bitters for a few days the abscess burst-gaischarging fully five quarts of pus in two hours. I felt as if I had received a shock from a powerful battery. My recovery after this was steady and the cure permanent, seeing that for the four years since I have had as good health as ever I had. I still take an occasional bottle, not that I need it but because I wish to keep my system in perfect working order. I can think of no more remarkable case than what I have myself passed through, and no words can express my thankfulness for such perfect recovery.

C. C. Haun,

O. C. HAUN, Welland P.O. Welland P.O.

In this connection the following letter from T. Cumines, Esq., a leading druggist of Welland, Ont., speaks for itself:

Mesers. T. Milburn & Co., Toronto.

Gentlemen,—I have been personally acquainted with Mr. C. C. Haun for the last 20 years, and have always found him a very reliable man. You may place the utmost confidence in anything he says with regard to your medicine. He has on many occasions within the last four years told me that it was marvellous the way the Burdock Blood Bitters had cured him, and that he now felt as able to do a day's work as he ever felt in his life. Although quite well he still takes some B. B. B. occasionally, as he says, to keep him in perfect health.

Yours truly,

The steadily increasing sale of B. B., the length of time it has been before the people, and the fact that it cures to stay cured, attest the sterling merit of this monarch of medicines, the people's favorite blood purifier, tonic and regulator.

OLD AGE. Nothing More Beautiful Than a White-Haired Woman.

What is more graciously beautiful than a white-haired woman well into that period called "elderly?" Yet, for all the usual fashion books and columns say, one might fancy that all the women in the world were young, or that only young women wore modish clothes. There are almost as many beautiful possibilities in the dun and dull colors as in the gay ones. Rich velvets and brocades and laces are no longer the exclusive right of elderly folks and of beautiful old age itself, but, even so, never do they seem so entirely fitting as when worn with gray hair and the beauty that only years can bring. The beauty of youth is that of the unmarked page, never as significant as the beauty of accomplished development. As youth has in these days, adopted the rich fabrics that Different Emotions Result in a Flow of Different Emotions Result in a Flow of the Briny Drop.

Fear, grief and joy, to say nothing of pathos and anger, bring tears to the eyes. They are said to come from the heart, and this is true, for no one ever reasoned himself into weeping without a first appeal through the imagination to some emotion. Tears, according to the Asclepiad, are the natural outlet of emotional tension. They are the result of a storm in the central nervous system, giving rise to changes in the vascular terminals of the tearchanges in the vascular terminals of the tearsecreting glands. These changes induce profuse excretion of water and weeping results.
In a mild degree some excretion is always in process, to bathe the eye and clear it of foreign matter. The controlling center is at a distance, though the secretion may be kept up by the small trace of saline substance that is present in the tears themselves. The lachrymal glands lie between the nervous center and the mucous surface of the eyeball. Tears afford a good illus tration of the way in which nervous fibres are capable of conveying to a secreting orare capable of conveying to a secreting or-gan exciting impulses from both sides of a gland lying in their course. Afferent and efferent communications bring about a similar result. Internal nervous vibrations similar result. Internal nervous vibrations and external excitation or reflex action cause a flow of tears. In both instances the exciting impulse is a vibration. Niobe, "all tears," and the unfortunate pedestrian with a minute particle of steel from the rail of an elevated road in his eye are unwilling exponents of a similar process. They weep the same kind of briny fluid, in exactly the same way, though from widely different causes. Imagination is at times sufficient to excite the nervous system into the production of tears without external aid or reflex. Writers and readers of good fiction weep over it alike, and the actor loses himself so entirely in the exigencies of dramatic art that he sheds real tears and the audience sheds tears with him. Of a truth the man who never weeps has a hard heart, and the quality of his intellect may also be questioned.

Exercise them existation or reflex action to exceed 20; cats and foxes rarely go be yound 15, while pigs, deer, the bear and the cow have often lived beyond 20 years; the yound 15, while pigs, deer, the bear and the cow have often lived beyond 20 years; the horse has been known to exceed 30; the porpoise lives fully as long; the lion 70; the tortoise have been known to pass into rot wo swans have been known to pass into rot wo swans have been known to pass into porpoise lives fully as long; the lion 70; the third century, the same, the end; the third century, the same, the third century, the work bene known to exceed 30; the porpoise lives fully as long; the lion 70; the thorse ways have been known to pass into rot wo swans have been known to pass into porpoise lives fully as long; the lion 70; the thorse ways have been known to pass five-score; one or two swans have been known to pass five-score; one or two swans have been known to pass into porpoise lives fully as long; the lion 70; the thorse ways have been known to pass five-score; one or two swans have been known to pass five-score; one or two swans have been known to pass five-score; one or two swans ha weeps has a hard neart, and the quality of his intellect may also be questioned.
Emotion then, affection, grief, anxiety, incite to tears; not pain nor discomfort.
The pangs of maternity are tearless, though the influence of ether or chloroform may cause some emotional dream that results in weeping. In the earlier days of surgery patients might scream and utter such piti-ful cries as to sicken the bystanders, might Ful cries as to sicken the bystanders, might even faint with pain yet there were seldom any tears. These being pure waves of emotion and a relief to the heart, are almost powerless to mitigate pain. Perhaps one who weeps from pain does so from unconscious though selfish pity—in other words from emotion. For the tearful, change of scene, mental diversion and outdoor life are the best remedies. The author quoted objects to alcohol as fearfully injurious. It disturbs and unbalances the nervous system, keeps up a maudlin and pitiful sentimentality and sustains the evil. Alcohol is the mother of sorrow, An opiate, however, prescrited at sorrow. An opiate, however, prescribed at night, soothes and controls and really dis-ciplines rebellious nerve centres. Sleep cures tears. And so does time, the restorer.

A liar would be brave toward God, while he is a coward toward men; for a lie faces God and shrinks from man.—Montaigne. Look on the bright side of life. Think of its pleasant things. Bear its unpleasant things patiently. Remember that the mercies of life greatly exceed its ills, and that often these ills are mercies in disguise.

Three Clever Little Object Lessons in Op-The eye is a good and accurate instrument of measurement and comparison; but it is not infallible. The English peri-odical, "Nature," printed lately a pretty optical illusion which can be easily de-scribed, and any of our readers who can draw fairly well can construct it for them-let the arch spring from a point three inches from the base of the pillars. Now draw a third pillar, one-half inch wide, so that one side of it will cut the arch exactly in the apex and will project an inch rves of one side of the arch will seem to be lower than those of the other.

be lower than those of the other.

The illusion is most complete when the figure is drawn in outline without any shading; and that part of the arch which is concealed by the pillar should be omitted, not rubbed out, as the traces of the lines will destroy the illusion.

Another optical illusion is made very simply by terminating lines in different ways. The lines are not set directly opposite one another, for if they were the vision would easily be corrected. The reader will find it of interest, first to judge of the length of the lines, and then to measure them. This Hotel has been entirely Refurnished, throughout and every possible arrangement is made to ensure the Comfort of Guasts Sample Rooms on the premises.

A puzzle almost identical with the above was printed a year or two ago in some of the trade journals. The puzzle is, of course, to determine by the eye alone which is the longest and which is the shortest of the lines, A A, B B, and C C.

In the third, curves are introduced to confuse the measure still more. Look at the cut, and, without measuring, say which is the greater distance—across the top of the hat, or from top to bottom. Then put your own hat on the table, about a yard in front of you, and carefully reconsider the problem. When you have made up your mind take a foot rule and measure your hat both ways.

Small Fish in Glass Tubes Lure the Big Here is an exceedingly novel device for deep water fishermen. It is designed to keep bait alive for an indefinite period. The hooks, instead of being attached to the line hooks, instead of being attached to the line in the usual way, are white, and are secured by a swivel and white wire leaders to an annealed, flanged, flint glass tube, through which the water circulates, and in which is held a live minnow, or other living bait, the glass magnifying the size of the fish in the tube, and its effect being such that, at a distance of a foot, only the bait fish in the tube is seen by the fish in the water outside, the hooks escaping observation.

An opening in the front of the tube and one in the cap, closing its rear, provides for a free circulation of water through it, so that one small bait fish may last for a day, the fish being inserted in the tube by day, the fish being inserted in the tube by unscrewing the rear cap. It is said that

NOVEL TROLLING DEVICE, bass, being equally adapted for taking either salt or fresh water game fish, whose natural bait consists of small fish.

The tubes are preferably made of different sizes, from 3½ to 5½ inches long, and proportionately trimmed with hooks, acproportionately trimmed with hooks, cording to the kind of fish it is propos to catch.

Scientists have lately been interested i Scientists have lately been interested in ascertaining the ages that, under favorable conditions, will be attained by various well-known animals, and a series of observations, extending through a long course of years, has afforded some interesting reor years, has afforded some interesting results. The age of the squirrel rarely exceeds 8 years; that of the rabbit 7; sheep will live 10 years; dogs have been known to exceed 20; cats and foxes rarely go beyond 15, while pigs, deer, the bear and the cow have often lived beyond 20 years; the horse has been known to exceed 30; the porpojes lives fully as long; the lion 70; the

The Chicago Tribune has been making an interesting experiment to test the comparative honesty of the residents of that city. Five pocketbooks were dropped in as many places by the reporters of the Tribune. They were dropped in well known crowded places, where there was little chance of their being allowed to lie undiscovered for any length of time. The reporters watched five people pick up the various wallets. Of the five finders one was adude, another a barber, the third a various wallets. Of the five finders one was adude, another a barber, the third a fashionably dressed woman, the fourth a printer, and the last a woman who rides in her own coupe. The barber was the only one of the five to return the property. He did not even wait until the following day, but started out after supper to return the wallet to its rightful owner.

used to be denied, so elderly ladies have taken to wearing fabrics and colors almost undignified. It is such a mistake. What a delight the really old lady is, with her placid face on which the story of her sweet life is written in the delicate tracery of the years; with soft silver hair parted and covering temples and ears; and in a gown of rich soft gray or bronze brocade. It should be bronze if the kind eyes are brown—eyes less bright than years ago perhaps, but with a softness not a dimness from the years. About the slender wrists and throat there is a narrow edge of brown marabout, and the skirt is finished in the same way. I have her sketched as she sits in her arm chair, no picture of forgotten or unbeautiful old age, but gracious and dignified, and crowned with years as with a garland of pale roses. Not a type of regret, but of fulfilment.
