ST. JOHN, N. B., FEBRUARY 5, 1910. THE SIMULTANEOUS CAMPAIGN

On Tuesday next St. John enters on what will, beyond doubt, be the most it very frequently happens that ladies important religious movement yet are compelled, for very good reasons, undertaken in this city. If anything is to be drawn from experience of ligious life of this city. It has been found elsewhere that these meetings sulted in a marked quickening of the ings in themselves, purely evangelistic and entirely free from any of those of religious frenzy, will be conducted by St. John clergymen, assisted by a rue Englishmen by St. John clergymen, assisted by a number of elequent speakers from outside. They will be rendered more attractive by special music which is to be provided. In fact the music is de-pended upon to draw to the meetings white fluffy hair, and the same ary

On Wednesday the mid-day services are to start. These will be held in a number of central halls and while it is not anticipated that for the first few days they will be as well attended. And the other side is just as true. as the evening ones, still experience else- No matter where you go you will find where has shown that once under way good people, helpful people. they prove just as popular as the others. In fact, even in some of the largest cities in which these campaigns have been held, the majority of the merchants and other employers have arranged to grant their employes extended time at the noon hour, in order that they might be able to attend the mid-day services. It is not to be exment in St. John will close for this purpose, but those in charge of the campaign have no doubt that the concessions granted in other places will be extended here.

As to the results of the campaign, those in charge of the work are very enthusiastic. They have found that the meetings develop a deeper interest in religious work in the whole community and that they bring into membership of the churches very large numbers of those who have hitherto been standing aloof.

Among those reached in this way, are not only men and women who frequent one or other of the churches without becoming members, or without taking any active part in the work, but a very large proportion of those who do not at any time attend church, and who are inclined to look upon religion as something beyond their reach, or out of their sphere of interest. It is not claimed that that all of those so in terested remain permanently with the churches, not that their enthusiasm croused in the campaign, continues for could not work. This of course depends on the disposition of the community. St. John is not a city that can be easily aroused to enthusiasm over any particular object, nor is it liable to become deeply interested on short notice. Yet when it once gets rted it means business, and although like certain other communities it may be inclined to skepticism in regard to the necessity for the present undertaking, it will in a very few days come to realize that what is being done is for its own benefit and will heartily participate in the services which have been arranged,

WORK FOR THE POLICE

It is impossible for the members of the police force to be everywhere at once. No doubt the officers are some place all the time, and equally probable is it that they are not wasting their opportunities for enforcing the various laws which it is their duty to enforce. The only question that may arise is whether there are not conditions which might be overcome by a little more energy on the part of the police. It is true that in spite of the vaunted freedom of the American girl, ladies are not popularly supposed to go about the streets late at night. Yet in spite of this supposition nine or ten o'clock at night. They should feel certain of absolute immunihistory of the city. All preparations have been carefully made and the details arranged under the supervision of gentlemen who have participated in similar services elsewhere, and whose experience will no doubt prove extremely beneficial to the local work—

On the contrary there is a very general dread among the ladies of this town about being on the street unattended at night and scarcely an evening passes but instances occur of ladies and girls being followed or insulted by men of more or less reputable or disreputable characteristics.

Do you feel that way at all?
To a certain extent I do.
But I am very much ashamed that I do and very sorry for all who are of the same nind with the old essayist and me, for much as I love C harles Lamb I think that dread of change is a very wrong attitude and one very perilous to happiness.

Let me tell you my own experience along that line.
I do not think I have ever approached a change in the routine of my life without dread, and yet so far I can truthfully say that I have never passed through a change in the roa line of my life which has not left me happier in the old.
I can remember, for instance, how I hated to leave my high school days behind—how sad I felt to think that when the pupils gathered next year I would not be among them.

ARIZONA AGAIN TONIGHT. Freatest of Western Plays at the Opera House.

The atmosphere of the wild and woolly west prevails at the Opera House today, where Our Own Stock Company is presenting Augustus Thomas' famous play Arizona. As presented by the Colpnia the play is a large success and has achieved the success of the season.

The production is beautifully staged and reflects great credit on all concorned. Every member of the cast seems particularly suited to their parts and those who attend tonight's performance are assured a treat.

The Colonials have won much favor in St. John and deservedly so. Every play in their repertoire has been well presented by this hard-working company of Thespians.

First Week of Furniture Sale

We have repeatedly made the assertion that "this store has been of discret benefit to the community." Instead of turning over back pages in search of proof, we refer to the furniture sale under way. It is a vital instance of progressive methods in store keeping and "the greatest good to the greatest number." Think of the large number of homes directly interested in this sale. Big discounts can be had during this sale.
