Count. Cronkhite stated as this was his last session with the council he wished to say a few words. He would ask that the council join with him in offering up a prayer to the Great Architect of the Universe for His care over them. Only one case did he know of in which the ranks of a couneil at which he attended were broken by death. He was getitng old and his days were short. This would be the last time he would sit at this board unless something called for a special meeting before the fall election. He referred to the death of the late Sherdff Balloch, and suggested that the council draw up a resolution on the same. It was the first occasion, too, since the death of Her late Majesty that the council had met in regular session, and he trusted the counci ould . tender, through the governo general, the regret of the council at her demise, and congratulations on the King's accession to the throne. He submitted the following written state-ment, which he had prepared for the occasion

Kearney introduced the quer tion of a better means of providing for the poor. The committee had come to the conclusion that a poor farm would be better than the present way of 'selling the poor." A man was placed on that committee who was an ex-tensive traveller and who claimed that the poor house was an unpractical policy. He had no objection to the cillor being at the tail of a prossioh, but he objected to his county being in that category. There were enough progressive men, however, to side-track the Rip Van Winkle from Aberdeen. Coun. Kearney read cornce from humerous so in which the alms house was in vogue and in all cases it was pronounced superior system to that of letting the paupers to the lowest bidders. A Halifax correspondent wrote that in that county the change to a poor farm was made many years ago, under pressure from the government. The poor farm was a paying institution. A rule was made that when the amount of help asked for was $30 and over a year, the person so applying must go to the poor house. It was a paying institution, and this was in Halifax county, where they raised rocks and fog and stuff like that. How institution, and this was in much better should this serve Carleton county? "FRUITY" FLAVOR.

Description.-The term "fruity" has been applied to a peculiar sweet flavor of very pronounced character which is frequently found in cheese. It has a strong resemblance to the odor of fer-mented fruit, certain kinds of wine, etc. It is found in the cheese from different sections of the country and during the different periods of the season, but does not appear to bear

A plug from a so-called acidy dheese has a rough "furry" surface, and does not show the smooth, bright appearance and semi-transparency which is characteristic of strictly finest cheese. Cause .- As a rule "acidy" or sour cheese are made from over-ripe milk, but it does not follow that all cheese made from such milk are unavoidably "acidy." The trouble arises when too huch acid is developed in the curd be-fore it has been made sufficiently firm, or properly "cooked," to use a common though erroneous expression. Again, if the whey is all removed E. B. Glenn, presumably this woma L. B. Glenn, presumably this woman, was known in half a dozen Ohio river towns, where, as a man, she did all kinds of rough work and finally at Butler built up a good business as a sewing machine and real estate agent. while the curd is still in this soft condition, it is difficult to expel the sur plus whey, and the result is apt to be a tender-bodied cheese, showing more or less signs of acidity.

She, or he, became engaged to a Mit Duke, daughter of a prominent famil Means of Prevention.-The remedu "acidy" or sour cheese is to get and even after her arrest for forgery rid of the whey more quickly, so that and even after her arrest for forgery the Dukes stood for her, the father going on her bond. She went to St. Louis ostensibly to purchase her trous-seau, and caused a report to be sent to Butler that she had been drowned. This report aroused suspicion and she was traced, caught and sentenced, with the curd will be firm enough the acid develops. The curd should have a slightly elastic or springy char-acter by the time it begins to "draw" on the hot iron. This result may be accomplished by cutting the curd finer and by running off a portion of the whey as soon as the heating is finished or even before that stage has been ached, in extreme cases. Vigorous stirring and continuous removal of the whey should be followed as the neces sities of the case demand, but on no account should the whey be wholly removed until the curd has acquired the other hand no cheese is ever as close as it might be unless heavy pressure has been gradually and per sistently applied.

Remedy .- This defect may be over come by allowing more acid to develop in the curd before salting; that is to say more time should be allowed from the drawing of the whey until the curd is salted and put to press. The ess acid there is in the curd when the whey is drawn the longer will be the time required to mature it properly.

"OFF FLAVOR "

Description .- This term is frequent ly applied in a general way to a vari-ety of bad flavors, but it more properly refers only to the well-known characteristic flavors which indicates early deterioration in the cheese. It occours most 'requently during the hot weather, but does not usually become oticeable until the cheese begins to break down."

Cause .- The so-called "off flavor" is of fermentation origin, and is the re-sult of the milk being contaminated ing contaminated by filth o: some form or other, and the cheese being cured at too high a It is only in extreme es that che se go "off flavor" when they are cured at a temperature not exceeding 65 degrees Fahr. They must ac-commodate all the poor, but that would be on a large scale, not a small scale, as councillors who had spoken seemed to think. Better move a little shorty and amount slowly and appoint a committee or commissioner to look the matter over. He thought it would be a good idea to have the subject submitted to the electorate next October. The more he looked into the matter the more he was favorable for the matter the more he was favorable for the farm. The poor farm in Woodstock was a success. From $2,500 poor expenses, after the farm had been adopted, the amount dropped down to $1,100. He would advocate the principle of the farm, in-stead of selling to the lowest bidder. Coun.
