

COOL CONFESSION

Of the Murder of His Employer and Benefactor.

New York, April 2.—Without the slightest quaver in his well modulated voice and displaying no outward sign of regret or remorse, Charles K. Jones, secretary and valet to the late William Marshall Rice, today confessed under oath that he had ended the life of his employer and benefactor with chloroform.

The confession was the climax of a remarkable trial, in which were laid bare the details of an alleged subtle conspiracy which had for its object the seizure of $500,000 in cash and negotiable securities and the conversion of $300,000 in realty to the use of the alleged chief conspirator.

There was a dramatic force in the directness and minute attention to detail with which Jones approached the tragedy of the murder. He covered the face of the sleeping man with the saturated napkin and then waited for him to die, and the audience in the court room became still and breathless as the climactic period was reached.

The self-confessed murderer told the story of the alleged plot from its inception. The capital crime he committed and all the minor offences that preceded it were, he declared, at the instigation and direction of Albert T. Patrick. It was Patrick, he said, who conceived the idea of forging a will and forging transfers and conveyances. It was Patrick who induced two persons to witness the forged signature. It was Patrick who determined that Rice should die, and it was Patrick who sought to have him killed slowly and then, becoming impatient, decided upon quick action. And, according to Jones, the proposition as it may seem, Rice never knew Patrick during his life and never saw him but once.

Jones, according to his story, first became acquainted with Patrick when the latter called at the residence of Mrs. Rice, on Madison avenue, this city, in October, 1898. The witness told of the growing friendship and the gradual approach to the discussion of the affairs of Mr. Rice, which finally resulted in the proposition to defraud, and Jones yielded. Then came the details of the story of the transfers and conveyances, of real and personal property, of the forging of the blank checks from the millionaire's check book; then delivery to Patrick and the forging of Rice's signature on the checks, and the delivery of the million dollar bill to the way first weakening him by continuous doses of mercury; the calling in of a physician at frequent intervals, thus apparently providing for the issuance of a death certificate, and the extreme care with which this plan of slow poisoning was carried out.

Then, as calmly as though unfolding the plot of a drama in which he was interested only as a spectator, Jones led up to the day of the murder.

He described a meeting in the street with Patrick, who told him that the old man was looking too long; that he had put out of the way, at once, that Jones should do the work and that there would really be no harm in it, because Rice had poisoned his own wife years ago and deserved punishment.

Jones described his return to Mr. Rice's apartments and the discovery of the millionaire sleeping peacefully in bed, the tale of his search for a napkin and the fashioning of it into a conical shape, as directed, he said, by Patrick; the detailed story of the painting of a small sponge at the point of the cone. Then he told of saturating the napkin and sponge with chloroform and holding it over his own nostrils to test it.

It was at this point that the crowd in the court room became so quiet that a pin might have been heard to drop, and looked straight into the eyes of Justice District Attorney Osborne and continued his story without a break, without a tremor in his voice. He described the light from the room of the wealthy man, the minutes in accordance with Patrick's alleged instructions; of the call for the physician, who came with Patrick, to find the old man dead.

It is impossible to describe the coolness of the voice of the witness as he related the different links which forged the chain Patrick, accused by the witness of being the arch-criminal, listened to the witness with attention and occasionally uttered words of the testimony. Not even the remarkable witness on the stand was more cool, calm and collected than this remarkable prisoner. Patrick's hand was firm and steady. He displayed neither anger nor repentment. When Jones described the description of the murder of the sleeping man, Patrick merely stroked his beard and leaned back in a chair, and presently slightly bored by the recital of the details.

SOUTH AFRICA.

Boer Langer Captured.

Bloemfontein, April 2.—By a night surprise the British captured a laager of 60 Boers near Boschburg, between Brandfort and Saitpan, Orange River Colony.

Moss Bubblic Cases.

Cape Town, April 2.—Ten fresh cases of Bubblic plague, including one European, were officially reported today.

Try to Stop Mule Transport.

New Orleans, April 2.—Proceedings were brought in the U. S. court today by representatives of the Boer government to prevent the sailing from here of the steamship Anglo-Australian, loaded with mules consigned to the British government in South Africa. Judge Partridge, after reading the petition, issued an order requiring the defendants to show cause on May 5 why a preliminary injunction should not be granted. The suit is brought by Samuel Parsons, a citizen of the South African republic, residing at Harborton; Edward Van Ness, a citizen of New York; and Charles D. Pierce, consul general of the Orange Free State, and is against Captain Pearson, who runs the steamer, and Messrs. Robert and Matthew Warner, who represent Elder-Dempster Co. here.

The Anglo-Australian was expected to sail today but the effect of the order issued by Judge Partridge will be to detain her until the hearing on Saturday.

"Thought it meant death sure."—Mrs. James McKim, of Danville, Ont., says she was almost miraculously cured from heart disease by Dr. Agnew's Cure for the Heart. "Until I began taking this remedy I was in a state of despair. I had heart failure and could not sleep. One dose gave me quick relief and one bottle cured me. The sufferings of my loved ones were ended by this cure."

SAVING OF NATIONS.

TALMAGE'S COSMOPOLITAN VIEW OF MESSIANIC SACRIFICES.

"YE ARE BOUGHT WITH A PRICE"

The Various Installments Paid by the Saviour of the World For the Souls of Men—Bringing the Glad Tidings of His Birth—Temptation of Jesus—The Agency at Gethsemane.

Washington, March 31.—In this discourse Dr. Talmage shows the Messianic sacrifices for the saving of all it appeared to him; text, I. Corinthians vi, 20, "Ye are bought with a price."

Your friend takes you through his valuable house. You examine the arches, the frescoed, the grass plots, the fish ponds, the conservatories, the parks of deer, and you say with yourself or you say aloud, "What did all this cost?" You see a costly diamond flashing in an earring, or you hear a costly dress rustling across the drawing room, or you see a high mettled span of horses harnessed with silver and gold, and you begin to make an estimate of the value.

The man who owns a large estate cannot instantly tell you all it is worth. He says, "I will estimate so much for the house, so much for the furniture, so much for laying out the grounds, so much for the stock, so much for the barn, so much for the equipage, adding up in all making this aggregate."

Well, my friends, I hear so much about our mansion in heaven, about its furniture and the grand surroundings, that I want to know how much it is all worth and what has actually been paid for it. I cannot complete in a month nor a year the magnificent calculation, but before I get through to-day I hope to give you the figures. "Ye are bought with a price."

With some friends I went to the Tower of London to look at the crown jewels. We walked around, caught one glimpse of them and, being in the procession, were compelled to pass out. I wish that I could take this audience into the tower of God's mercy and strength, that you might walk around just once at least and see the crown jewels of eternity, behold the price paid to put the aged millionaire out of the way, first weakening him by continuous doses of mercury; the calling in of a physician at frequent intervals, thus apparently providing for the issuance of a death certificate, and the extreme care with which this plan of slow poisoning was carried out.

Now, if you have a large amount of money to pay you do not pay it all at once, but you pay it by installments—so much the 1st of January, so much the 1st of April, so much the 1st of July, so much the 1st of October, until the entire amount is paid, and I have to tell this audience that "you have been bought with a price," and that the price was paid in different installments.

The first installment paid for the clearance of our souls from the ignominious birth of Christ in Bethlehem. Though we may never be carefully looked after afterward, our attention to the world is justly guarded almost kindly attentions. Privacy and silence are afforded when God launches an immortal soul into the world. Even the roughest of men know enough to stand back. But I have to tell you that in the village on the side of the hill there was a very bad man of upbraiding Jesus was born. In a village capable of accommodating only a few hundred people many thousands people were crowded, and amid hoarse yells and stupid boasts of burden the Messiah appeared. No silence. No privacy. A better adapted place hath the eagle in the eyrie, hath the whelp in the lion's lair. The exile of heaven leapt down upon earth. The first night out from the palace of heaven spent in an outhouse. One hour after laying aside the robes of heaven dressed in a wrapper of coarse linen. One would have supposed that Christ would have had a more gradual descent, coming from heaven first to a high way world of great magnitude, then to Caesar's palace, then to a merchant's castle in Galilee, then to a private home in Bethany, and last of all to a stable. Not it was one leap from the top to the bottom.

Let us open the door of the cavernous in Bethlehem and drive away the camels. Pass on through the group of idlers and loungers. What O Mary, no light? "No light," she says, "have that which comes through the door." What Mary, no food? "None," she says, "only that which was brought in the sack on the journey." Let the Bethlehem woman who has come in here with kindly intentions put back the covering from the babe that we may look upon it. Look! Look! Uncover your head. Let us kneel. Let all voices be hushed. Son of Mary! Son of God! Child of a day! Monarch of eternity! In that eye the glance of a God. Omnipotence sheathed in that babe's arm. That voice to be changed from the feeble plaint to the tone that shall wake the dead. Hosanna! Hosanna! Glory to God that Jesus came from throne to manger that we might rise from manger to throne, and that all the gates are open, and that the door of heaven that once swung this way to let Jesus out now swings the other way to let us in. Let all the bellmen of heaven lay hold of the rope and ring out the news, "Behold, I bring you glad tidings of great joy, which shall be to all people, for to-day is born in the city of David a Saviour, which is Christ the Lord."

The second installment paid for our soul's clearance was the scene in Quarantania, a mountainous region, full of caverns, where are to-day panthers and wild beasts of all sorts, so that you must now go there armed with knife or gun or pistol. It was there that Jesus went to think and to pray, and it was there that this monster of hell—more evil, more terrible, than any devil that appeared in that cavern—satan himself, met Christ.

The foe in the attack of Christ—that "Pillbox Lendulus," in his letter to the Roman senate, ascribed to Jesus—that "rose had scattered its petals. Abstinence from food had thrown him into emaciation. A long abstinence from food resulted in profane history is that of the crew of the ship Juno. For 23 days they had nothing to eat. But this suffering had lasted month and ten days before he broke fast. Hunger must have agonized every fibre of the body and gnawed on the stomach with teeth of death. The thought of a morsel of bread or meat must have thrilled the body with something like ferocity." Turn out a pack of men hungry as Christ was a-hungred, and if they had strength with one yell they would devour you as a kid. It was in that temptation came to you, and me under these circumstances we would have cried, "Bread! I shall be!" and been almost impatient at the time that the tempter found out that it was just what it pretended to be, a good coat of mail. Then the man received a large reward.

I believe that the same coat of mail that struck back the weapons of temptation from the head of Christ, we may now all wear. For Jesus came and says, "I have been tempted, and I know what it is to be tempted. Take this robe that defended me and wear it for yourselves. I shall see you through all temptations, and I shall see you through all temptations."

But, says Satan still further to Jesus, "I will show you something worth looking at." And after a half day's journey they came to Jerusalem and to the top of the temple. Jesus said, "I have been tempted, and I know what it is to be tempted. Take this robe that defended me and wear it for yourselves. I shall see you through all temptations, and I shall see you through all temptations."

Jesus said, "I have been tempted, and I know what it is to be tempted. Take this robe that defended me and wear it for yourselves. I shall see you through all temptations, and I shall see you through all temptations."

But, says Satan still further to Jesus, "I will show you something worth looking at." And after a half day's journey they came to Jerusalem and to the top of the temple. Jesus said, "I have been tempted, and I know what it is to be tempted. Take this robe that defended me and wear it for yourselves. I shall see you through all temptations, and I shall see you through all temptations."
