use the vacated space in the library until the extension to the Weldon law building is ready.

Haley says the university will spend about $20 million over the next four or five years building extensions to various departments on campus, including chemistry, law and the Henson College.

"In some ways, they (CBIC) are non-campus people, and they've never paid rent, but that never entered into the question. I'm as sensitive as other people about moving it off campus, but there isn't any other answer," says Haley.

CBIC often provided space for readings free of charge, and many authors, including Choyce and Marjory Whitelaw, a writer and broadcaster in Halifax, says that activity gave much needed exposure to Canadian authors.

"They were an activating agent in the book trade for the Atlantic region, and their location was a part of that," says Whitelaw. "No other place in the city is that good. The law faculty is important, but CBIC needs the space more," she says.

incidental fees: better management of human resources; easier tax breaks for potential donors.

"In a changing world, we have to have universities that are in step," says McGill council vice-president Ian Brodie. "We can't push ourselves into the next generation of technology without keeping up.

"If we are crippling our universities through inadequate funding, we're crippling our future," he says.

The coalition believes the public is generally unaware that the government has made substantial funding cuts for the past five years and that the loans and bursaries system is totally inadequate.

"Contrary to popular belief, raising tuition fees is not the solution to the underfunding problem," says Desrosiers. "There are many other ways that have not been properly studied."

"Tuition fee hikes are not the solution and they won't solve the problem," says U de M secretary general Luc Trepanier. "If the government maintains such a narrowminded view, the problems will be back and worse in years to come."

Desrosiers says government subsidies should reflect university needs. He points to the per capita formula subsidy which has decreased from $6300 in 1981 to about $4100 in 1986.

Panthers claw Tigers 1-0

By BILL GLAWSON

THE DALHOUSIE TIGERS soccer team played their first game of the season on Saturday at Studley Field and were defeated 1-0 by the defending champions, the U.P.E.I. Panthers. It was a close and hard fought game as both teams went all out to win the contest. There was a small crowd on hand to watch the more powerful Panthers win the game. The Panthers proved to be the better team as their dribbling and passes were superior to that of the Tigers.

The Tigers finished third in the East Division last year but coach Ray MacNeil feels the team will do much better this year and hopes to make the playoffs.

There are nine teams in the A.U.A.A. soccer league. There are four teams in the West Division and five in the east. The two top teams in each division will advance to the conference championship November 1st and 2nd. The conference champion will then go on to the four team national tournament two weeks later which may be held in Antigonish.

Janos Barnas scored the only goal of the game for the Panthers; while Keith Souchereau and goaltender Alan Jones played an outstanding game for the Tigers. Mike Herasamenko, of the Tigers, was taken away early in the second half for stitches to his head as he and a Panthers player collided while both tried to head the ball.

The Tigers did much better at Studley on Sunday as they defeated the Mount Allison Mounties 1-0 on a goal by forward Tim Hall. The Tigers now have a record of 1-1-0.
