

proud to be British subjects and to live in a British Colony. I confess that I am myself still just back there where they were. I hope that this idea of doing things without any reference to the Home Parliament may come to nothing. We are well enough off as we are. For Heaven's sake let's leave well enough alone. All tinkering with the Constitution is dangerous - for if you pull one stone out of the arch no one can tell what minute the whole thing may tumble.

Yours faithfully,
