

CONTENTS.

---

CHAPTER I.

INTRODUCTORY.

INVENTIONS AND DISCOVERIES.

PAGE

Inventions and Discoveries.—Distinctions and Contrast.—The One, Useful Contrivances of Man ; the Other, New Things Found in Nature.—Galileo and the Telescope.—Newton and the Law of Gravitation.—Often United as Soul and Body.—Inventions and Discoveries do not Precede or Succeed in Order.—Inventions—Alphabetical Writing ; Arabic Notation ; The Mariner's Compass ; The Telescope ; The Steam Engine.—Discoveries ;—Attraction of Gravitation ; Planetary Motions ; Circulation of Blood ; Velocity of Light.—Nineteenth Century Inventions and Discoveries.—Further Definitions.—Law of Development.—Contrivances, not Creations.—Man Always an Inventor.—Prof. Langley on Slow Growth of Inventions.—Inventions of this Century Outgrowth of Past Ones.—Egyptian Crooked Stick, Precursor of Modern Plough.—Hero of Alexandria and James Watt.—David's Harp and the Grand Piano.—Electrical Science in 1600 and the Present Day.—Evolution and Interrelation of the Arts.—Age of Machine Inventions.—Its Beginning.—The Inducements to Invention.—Necessity not Always the Mother.—Wants of Various Kinds.—Accident.—Governmental Protection the Greatest Incentive.—Origin and Growth of Patent Laws.—Influence of Personal, Political and Intellectual Freedom and Education.—Arts of Civilization Due to the Inventor.—Macaulay's Estimate.—Will Inventions Continue to In-