United States.

Genl. Scott has gone to his grave greatly respetted by American citizens generally.

The fillibustering proceedings of the Fenians appears to afford to the people of the United States a large degree of satisfaction. The scheme of an Irish Republic, however chimerical, pleases the fancy of republicans. But though no expectation of the processing of the processin pectation of success in such a project ean be eriously entertained by intelligent Americans yet the hope is encouraged that the raiders will occasion no small amount of annoyance and exnot be justified on such ground; and we are morning at 10 o'clock. greatly mataken if Americans do not find this organization a troublesome affair to themselves, and that in encouraging such movement, they are but preparing a whip for their own back.
