Anecdotal.

While preaching from the text: "He giveth his beloved sleep," a minister stopped in the middle of his sermon, gazed upon his dosing auditors, and said: "Brethren, it is hard to realize the wondrous unbounded love the Lord appears to have for a good portion of this congregation."

The "Green Bag" tells of a lawyer who was about to furnish a bill of costs. "I hope," said his client, who was a baker, "that you will make it as light as possible." "Ah," said the lawyer, "you might perhaps say that to the foreman of your court, but I am not the man to make it for you."

While James McNeill Whistler, the eccentric American painter, was in a London shop one day a customer rushed in, and mistaking Mr. Whistler for a clerk, exclaimed: "I say, this hat doesn't fit. The artist eyed him for a minute, and then replied, scornfully: "Neither does your coat, and I'll be hanged if I like the color of your trousers."

An attorney named Elise, rather diminutive in his stature, and not particularly respectable in his appearance, once met Jekyl. "Sir," said he, "I hear you have called me a pettifogging scoundrel. Have you done so, sir?" "Sir," said Jekyl, with a look of contempt, "I am not trying to make a pettifogging, or a scoundrel, but I said you were 'little Elise.'"

When Bishop Potter was asked, the other day, what he thought of woman suffrage he made the diplomatic reply: "My dear madam, I have gotten away beyond that; I am trying to make the best terms with the sex that I can obtain." This brings to mind the words of William M. Evans when asked by a lady if he did not think that woman was the best judge of woman. He replied: "Not only the best judge, madam, but the best executioner."

"S. Paul" is the name above a chemist's shop in a London suburb. It arrested the attention of a convivial gentleman returning from his last evening's hours, and he rubbed the bell vigorously. The chemist's head appeared above. "What is it?" he called out. "Want speak 'u' ver' per'clar," said the convivial one, "I want some medicine." "Want speak 'u' ver' per'clar," said the chemist, "I want some medicine." "Want speak 'u' ver' per'clar," said the convivial one, "I want some medicine." "Want speak 'u' ver' per'clar," said the chemist, "I want some medicine."

J. Pierpont Morgan makes his boast that he never has been interviewed, and declares that in the last seven years but one interview ever has been able to approach him. This was on a recent trip to Europe, when a representative of the London "Times" would not take "No" for an answer. "Well," said Morgan, "my time is worth ten pounds a minute," at last said Morgan. "The 'Times' man says he'll take two minutes at that," came back the reply. The interviewer handed Mr. Morgan a speech, Morgan took just two minutes by both their watches, did all the talking himself, and rose to go on the instant. "Why did you want to see me?" Morgan asked in a dejected tone. "I wanted to see you," said the interviewer. "I wanted to see you," said Morgan. "I wanted to see you," said the interviewer. "I wanted to see you," said Morgan.

Wearily Brain Workers.

Fagged out, ideas come as slowly as molasses. You think of things just a minute or two too late. Snip's counsel. The buoyancy that made work a pleasure—that's gone, too. The doctor would tell you that you are run down, not eating enough nor digesting enough. Your stomach needs aid. Your digestion needs a brace. Your blood requires Phosphorus and Iron that it may be formed readily. Now Ferrozone is a wonderful nerve brace and blood maker. It's food for the blood and nerves, it will make you strong quickly and permanently. Sold by McCall & Co.

London's Lake of Tea.

It has been calculated that something like 1,250,000,000 pints of tea are imbibed yearly by Londoners and that the teapot necessary to contain this amount, if properly shaped, would comfortably take in the whole of St. Paul's cathedral.

Acute and Chronic Rheumatism.

are equally influenced by the almost magical pain-subduing power of Pelson's Nervine, equal in medicinal value to five times the quantity of any other rheumatic remedy. Nervine cures because it reaches the source of the disease and drives it out of the system. Nervine is an unusually good rheumatic cure, and makes many unusual cures. Just rub it in the next time you have an attack. The immediate result will surprise you.

Dear Sirs—While in the country last summer I was badly bitten by mosquitoes—so badly that I thought I was to be disfigured for a couple of weeks. A PAPAL APPOINTMENT

Rome, July 29.—Cardinal Gotti Prefect of the sacred congregation of bishops and regulars and of regular discipline, was appointed to the office of Cardinal Ledowski, to-day.

DUKE EXPRESSES THANKS.

London, July 29.—The resolution of the Grand Lodge of Canada, A. F. & A. M., passed at the recent annual communication held at Windsor, Ont., to the effect of recognizing the eminence as a Mason, and to mark the important epoch, Masonic and otherwise, throughout the Empire has just passed the honorary rank of Past Grand Master of the Grand Lodge of Canada, to be conferred upon H. R. H. the Duke of Connaught. Most Worshipful Grand Master of the United Grand Lodge of England, was conveyed to His Royal Highness by Mr. W. Bro. J. Ross Robertson, of Toronto, who is the representative of the Grand Lodge of England, at the Grand Lodge of Canada.

The Duke, who commands the troops in Ireland, is at present in that country, and Grand Secretary Leitchworth was the medium through which the communication was forwarded. H. R. H. once acknowledged his receipt, expressing his grateful thanks and high appreciation of the honor done him, adding that it was only a natural feeling, entertained toward Britain by the Masons of the Grand Lodge of Canada. H. R. H. further requested that his acknowledgment as above be transmitted to the Masons of the Grand Lodge of Canada.

In some of the Swiss valleys the inhabitants are all afflicted with goitre or "thick neck." Instead of regarding this as a deformity they seem to think it a natural feature of physical development, and tourists passing through the valleys are sometimes joined by the goitrous inhabitants, because they are without this offensive swelling. Thus a form of disease may become so common that it is regarded as a natural and necessary condition of life. It is so, to a large extent, with what are called diseases of the women. Every woman suffers more or less from irregularity, ulceration, debilitating drains, or female weakness, and this suffering is so common and so universal that many women are not aware of it. It is a condition as natural as it is unnecessary. The use of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription strengthens the weak womanly organs and regulates the womanly functions, so that woman is practically delivered from the pain and misery which eat up ten fifths of her life—between the ages of fifteen and forty-five. "Favorite Prescription" makes weak women strong and sick women well.

COMING TO CANADA

Cape Town, July 29.—Generals Delarey and Botha were given an ovation yesterday at Stellenbosch. They were driven to the town hall, and each of the two townships was driven by sixty students. At a luncheon which followed the students acted as waiters.

General Botha, in a feeling address, said the day of surrender was the most painful of his life, but now that it had been done he prayed earnestly that his hearers should consider it God's will. Although Afrikaner nationality, in a manner, had been buried, it would remain the most important factor in the social life of South Africa. General Botha paid a tribute to former President Steyn's ability as a statesman. "Now, let us stop bickering ourselves about politics," said the General, "and try to make ourselves happy in South Africa, because we have no home elsewhere."

Generals Botha and Delarey will proceed to England, the United States and Canada to collect funds for the relief of widows and orphans of Boer soldiers.

Mainly About People.

A High Church stranger who was visiting a rural church in England enquired: "Have you matins in this church?" "Oh, no, sir," replied the rustic vergor, "but we have o'clock right up to the channel."

An Argyllshire odder was asked how the kirk progressed in his locality. "Ah, weel," said he, "we had four hundred members. Then we had a division and there were only two hundred left; then a disruption and only ten left. Then we had a heresy trial, and now there's only me and my brother Duncan left, and I ha' grave doots o' Duncan's orthodoxy."

The great Mendelssohn was once compelled to accept the office of bookkeeper with a banker who was a very ignorant man. A few days after the banker said to Mendelssohn: "Do you think God works things wisely? You He made to be a bookkeeper, and me a rich banker." "Just notice the wisdom of God," promptly replied Mendelssohn. "If He had made me the banker, do you think I would engage you for a bookkeeper?"

The story is told that President Roosevelt was once traveling in Idaho, and passed a bookstore in the window of which was a copy of his "Winning of the West." Going into the bookstore he enquired, "Who is this author Roosevelt?" "Oh," said the bookseller, "he's a ranch-driver." "And what do you think of his book?" asked the President. "Well," said the dealer, slowly and deliberately, "I've always thought I'd like to meet the author and tell him that if he had stuck to running a ranch and give up writing books he'd have made a powerful more of a success at his trade."

The chief of the Leslies is said to have prayed before a battle: "Lord, be on our side! An' gin ye canna be on our side, aye lay low a bit, an' ye'll see thae carles get a hidin' that must please ye." An old Covenantor, who refused his household with a rod of iron, is said to have prayed in all sincerity at family worship: "O Lord, ha'e a care o' Rab, for he is on the great deep, an' Thou holdest it in the hollow o' Thy hand. An' ha'e a care o' Jamie, for he hae gone to fight the enemies o' his country, an' the outcome o' the battle is wi' Thee. But ye needna fash Yersel' wi' wee Wully, for I hae him broken! I am a cawpable o' lookin' after him mysel'."

Lord Kelvin, the great British scientist, now in this country, is much given to preoccupation. It is said his students were wont to accompany the endless repetition of the definition of an ideal magnet, "an infinitely long, infinitely thin, uniform, and uniformly and longitudinally magnetized bar," by a stately tramp of feet. At the conclusion of this staggering performance, Professor Thomson, as he then was, would invariably shout, "Silence." One day the boys put it up to keep absolutely still, but the cry of "Silence" came at the end just the same. It is told of him, too, that he once went sound asleep presiding at a banquet. It was the penalty of overwork.

Opie Read, the Southern novelist, who lives in Chicago, has accepted the nomination for alderman from a Republican convention in a Republican ward. Until the last Presidential campaign Mr. Read had always affiliated with the Democracy. During the campaign of 1890, however, he made speeches to the West in behalf of the sound-money ticket. When his bill of expenses went to Mr. Hanna the chairman noticed that Mr. Read's expenses in Denver were much larger than in any other place. Mr. Hanna called Mr. Read's attention to this. "I reckon as much," Mr. Read replied, "but did you ever play poker in that pesky town?" Mr. Hanna made no answer, but put an "O. K." on the account.

Clerk Newton of the Parker House, Boston, is telling a good story at his own expense. When a small boy on the farm his folks often sent him to the neighbors to buy a dozen eggs when their hens failed to lay enough. He noticed that the old farmer always held each egg before a lighted candle and examined it carefully. In his innocence of Yankee shrewdness, Newton supposed that this was prompted more by honesty and intention to detect whether the eggs were bad or not. One day, however, when he counted his eggs, according to custom, there were only eleven in the basket. With a determination not to be cheated, he lad trudged proudly back to the house, and quickly made known his discovery. "Oh," said the old farmer, "that's all right, my boy; one of them has a double yolk."

Written on the Face.

We write our characters on our faces; yet, though we are quick to read our neighbor's face we are slow to realize that our own is open for him to read. But it is. The story is there, and we are writing it every day of our lives. Not only do smiles and frowns leave traces, but every passion which sways the heart stamps its record upon the face. Even a ride in a street car on a short railway journey gives proof of this. Look around you. Those two strangers opposite you never saw before, yet you know that one is passionate, the other mean, and your heart warms to the little old lady near by. You want no one to assure you she is kind and gentle, while a whole network of wrinkles about the eyes tells you that the old gentleman in the corner loves his joke. Character, indeed, is written plainly on every face. Some speak of tragedy, some of comedy, and not a few give you a distinct warning.
