TORONTO'S LACROSSE TROUBLE

Two members of the Tecumseh la crosse club assaulted the referee is a game at Toronto on Saturday, and now the Star calls upon the police to prosecute the men. "The police au thorities," the Star says, "should act in the interests of law and order, and bring the referee, players, and officials of the match as witnesses Brutality in lacrosse will never be stopped if we wait until the players drag each other into police court. It is contrary to the code that governs field sports, and the player who dees it is ostracized. The code requires that if your man cuts your head open with his stick you shall lie low for a chance to body-check him through a board fence—but sum-mon him to court, never!" There is a principle involved extending beyond the field of athletic sport. Any code that refuses to recognize the 16th, 1835, law is anarchical. It tends to bring the law into disrepute, and to establish a false, and often mis chievous standard of manliness. There is no more reason why one man should be allowed to assault another on a lacrosse field than there is why one man should be allowed to ent at the trial, made such strenuous slug another on the main street; nor is there any reason why the man as saulted on the lacrosse field should be allowed to take the law in his own hands that does not apply to the man on the street.

A STRANGE CASE.

Judging by the newspapers, England, has on her hands what some of the writers call another Dreyfus case. The victim of Adolf Beck, a man now sixty-three years of age, who has been prosecuted and persecuted by the police for eight years, and twice convicted, although entirely innocent. Through the efforts of a newspaper writer the man's story has been brought prominently before the public, and most of the influential papers have joined in a demand for an investigation. The Government, represented by the Treasury Department, has offered the victim £2,000 ($10,000) on condition that the Department be absolved from further claims. The Daily Mail, which was instrumental in placing the story before the public, strongly urges Mr. Beck to refuse the offer, and guarantees him that amount should the treasury withdraw its bid for his silence. The Mail demands an investigation, and claims to be supported in its demand by every newspaper in London, irrespective of politics, "Think," says The Mail, "what it would mean if Mr. Beck were induced to accept this 'isolation' which the treasury has offered him. Silence over the mysteries of the whole terrible affair, no public investigation, no punishment for the men who have made a byword of justice in this particular case, no examination of methods which imperil the liberty and honor of every person who reads these lines, no light on incidents that must sadden the heart of every honest citizen." The English people show their appreciation of the priveleges of British citizenship by insisting on them, not gushing over them British system of adminstering justice is in many respects a model for the world; but, like most human institutions, it has its weak spots, and one of the weaknesses is revealed by the Beck case. There is always the danger of officers of the law showing more anxiety to secure conviction than to establish justice.

HOW A PROPHECY CAME TRUE. Paris L'Action.

Theodore Stavarche, living in town of Hermezin, near Jassy, writes Bucharest correspondent, had his fortune told sixty-five years ago by a gipsy, who said that he would die by the bayonet. He fought through the Russo-Turkish war, was decorated for conspicuous bravery at Plevna and Smarden, and never received a scratch. The other day, however, at the age of 75, he committed suicide with his grandson's bayonet, thus fulfilling the ancient prophecy.

FREE PARDON AFTER 43 YEARS. London Times.

I was travelling in the Australian bush-New South Wales -when I came across a respectable old man, over 60 years of age, who told me an extraordinary story. There and a man named Oliver were tried at Exeter in 1836 for the murder of a yeoman farmer named May on July

They were both convicted and ser tenced to be executed. Oliver, in the dock, turned to the judge and said: "This man, Galley, is quite innocent." Mr. Cockburn, afterwards Lord Chief Justice, who defended Galley, and shorthand reporter who was also presefforts that Galley's sentence of death was not carried out, but he was transported to New South Wales, where he arrived in 1839. Oliver was executed. Many years afterwards a man named John Longley, on his on his deathbed, confessed that he and Oliver were the murderers of May, and Galley was innocent.

A number of people, and I among hem, wrote to my fine old friend Sir Edward Wilmot, M.P., who took up the case and presented it to the ouse of commons in a simple, clear and effective manner. Galley did not like to marry until he received a free pardon. The proceedings in the house commons are fully reported in hansard, especially the great speech of John Bright. After an exciting de-bate it was resolved to recommend the Queen to grant a pardon to Galley, which was accordingly given in 1879, forty-three years after the con of the poor old Australian

TILBURY

Sept. 2—Tilburites are quite interested in a suit by Dr. Sm.th, of Mt. Clemens, Mich., son of T. A. Smith, of Chatham, against his partner, Dr. O'Keefe, formerly of Tilbury. It appears that Dr. O'Keefe's brother, Joseph O'keefe, with Dr. Hall, of Chatham, with other stockholders, organized the Chatham Oil Co., with a capital of $15,000. Dr. O'Keefe disposed of his stock at a profit, and now Dr. Smith claims he was to have a share of the profits.
