HE WAS ALARMED ABOUT HIS WIFE

Says She Was Only A Shadow of Her Former Self Before She Began Taking Tanlac.

"My wife and I will praise Tanlac as long as we live, for it is nothing less than wonderful the way it has restored her to good health again," said A. J. Johnson, of 49 Cornwallis street, Halifax, N. S.

"For about a year before she started taking Tanlac she was in such a run-down condition that she could hardly drag around. She had no appetite and in fact she was afraid to eat very much because of what she suffered afterwards. Whatever she ate would sour and ferment and bloat her up something awful. She was also troubled with terrible headaches and dizzy spells. Her nerves were in such a bad state, she lost weight and became so weak she couldn't remain up long each day. I was very worried about her, for although she had tried just about everything in the way of medicines, none of them seemed to do her any good.

"We heard of so many people being helped by Tanlac that my wife decided to give it a trial. The first bottle did her so much good that she kept on with it until now she is well as she ever was in her life. She has a fine appetite and can eat anything without having the least trouble afterwards. She has gained ten pounds in weight and is stronger in every way. She is never bothered with headaches or dizzy spells now and her nerves are so steady she sleeps all night and gets up in the morning feeling fine and able to do the day's work.

THE ANNUAL CLEAN-UP

As soon as the breeding season is over the fowl that are not intended to be retained for future breeders should be disposed of. The birds should be either put into a yard or confined to part of the yard, the rest being limed, ploughed or spaded, and seeded to green crop such as rape or rye.

All litter should be removed from the house and the ceiling, walls and floor thoroughly swept. Movable fixtures should be taken out and the whole interior given a thorough washing. The best way to do this is to use the hose if you have one, after the hose give the building a good hosing and scrub it down with a stiff brush. If there is no hose, be even more careful about the scrubbing. After the house has been thoroughly cleaned give it a soaking with a good strong disinfectant. One of the coal tar preparations will be found satisfactory for this purpose, this should be applied with a spray pump so that it will be forced into all the cracks and crevices of the building. If there is no spray pump, use a brush, but be sure to get it into these cracks and crevices.

The house should be left standing for a couple of days to dry out, leaving it wide open to allow the sun and air to enter freely. It should then be given a good application of whitewash. The fixtures, nest boxes, roosts and dropping board which have been removed should be treated in a similar manner.

At the time of this annual house cleaning it is a good plan to note what repairs to the houses, fixtures and fences are needed and have them made as soon as possible. Also clean up and burn any accumulation of rubbish leaving nothing under which vermin may hide. A clean house free from lice and mites is easy to keep clean. Then see that the pullets are healthy and free from lice, when they are put in, and the problem of winter eggs is more than half solved.

WESTERN POLITICS
 Those who assume that the grain growers party will make a clean sweep in the west may get a few pointers from what is said by a correspondent of the Sydney Post, who writes from Edmonton, in the province of Alberta. This correspondent, the Post claims, is exceptionally well informed and he says the inference that because Medicine Hat elected a Farmer candidate by a large majority to the House of Commons, and the Province went overwhelmingly Agrarian in the local elections, equally striking successes may be expected to be won by the Crerar party in the next Federal contest is based on a quite superficial knowledge of political conditions in Alberta. He argues that the Medicine Hat result reflects but rural sentiment, whereas redistribution will give the towns and cities a larger share of the representation in the next House. The outcome of the local election he ascribes to a popular revolt against the Stewart government because of its indefensible record, and claims that the Conservatives voted solidly with the Agrarians to bring about its overthrow. Hon. George Hoadly, the ex-leader of the Conservatives, is an influential member of the new Government, and that fact, the Post's Edmonton correspondent is convinced, will ensure the neutrality of the Provincial Administration in the Federal election. He predicts that the Federal contest in Alberta will be a virtually straight fight between the Government and Agrarian parties, the Liberal Opposition being no longer a factor to reckon with in the west. In such a state of facts, he anticipates that thousands of old-line Liberals, saving to choose in the majority of cases between Government and Farmer candidates, will line up in support of the National Liberal and Conservative party. He concludes that "there will be no Medicine Hat landslide in favor of Crerar in the Dominion elections. The needle points to an opposite pole. When the ballots are counted and the shouting done, Melghen will head the list from the Province of Alberta. He cannot help it."

In appraising the whole political situation in the West, there are two significant facts to be borne in mind. One is that the Agrarians cannot carry a single urban constituency in any of the four Western Provinces. The other is that the Agrarians have been unable to gain a foothold in rural British Columbia. And the urban constituencies of the Prairie Provinces, taken with British Columbia, will elect a substantial majority of the Western representatives to the next House of Commons.
