A Great Event

On Monday evening April 13, at 7:30 o'clock, Bishop Gilmore, of Cleveland, Ohio, died at St. Augustine, Florida, whither he had gone, upon the advice of his physicians, for the best of his health. There was with him in his last moments, Right Rev. Bishop McLeary, of the Diocese of Louisville, Ky.; Fathers H. L. Wright and G. F. Healy, Secretary to the Bishop, and his faithful nurses, Sisters of the Sacred Heart.

Ayer's Sarsaparilla

For several months I was troubled with scurvyous eruptions over the whole body. My appetite was bad, and my system so prostrated that I was unable to work. After trying several remedies, I was induced to take Ayer's Sarsaparilla, and in a few days I began to feel better. I continued to take it until I was cured. It is a most valuable medicine, and I can recommend it to all who are afflicted with any of the above named ailments. It is sold by all druggists.

Ayer's Sarsaparilla

Prepared by Dr. J. C. Ayer & Co., Lowell, Mass.

Restored My Health

The rapidity of the cure afforded me, as I expected, was beyond all praise. I was able to resume my usual avocations, and I feel that I owe my health to Ayer's Sarsaparilla. It is a most valuable medicine, and I can recommend it to all who are afflicted with any of the above named ailments. It is sold by all druggists.

Cut This Out

And return to me with twenty cents silver or stamps and receive paid for 100 old and popular songs, 115 latest popular songs, 1000 quotations from popular authors, 1 piece full size sheet music, 1000 names of famous men, 1000 names of famous places, 1000 names of famous events, 1000 names of famous people, 1000 names of famous things, 1000 names of famous places, 1000 names of famous events, 1000 names of famous people, 1000 names of famous things.

Bishop Gilmore

He was consecrated Bishop of Cleveland by Archbishop Purcell in the Cathedral of Cincinnati, April 14, 1872. A few days later, he took possession of his Cathedral church at Cleveland, thus relieving Very Rev. E. Hanna, who had filled the office of Administrator. Bishop Gilmore had been elected to the office of Administrator in March, 1871. In the same letter he explained and defended the rights of Catholics, who had been looked upon as "heretics" of wood and drawers of water, and seemingly took that position rather than that of equals of their non-Catholic fellow citizens. In the same letter he also explained and defended the parochial school system as well as the industrial school system. He was a man of high ability, many of whom had that far to pose it. For those bold and fearless utterances of views he was severely attacked by the local press and public as well as by the hierarchy at large. But in spirit of meekness, calmness and misrepresentation he pursued the path of duty as he saw it and forced the public to acknowledge his position. It is not to be considered himself bound to do and say.

Character of the Late Bishop

Bishop Gilmore was a man of strong individuality, firm, bold, fearless. As a preacher and public speaker he impressed with his eloquence, calm, clear, and logical. As a writer he was pointed and wielded a strong pen, even trenchant at times. Tall, commanding in appearance, with a markedly intellectual countenance, he was able to attract to any assembly as a man of force and strength of character. As a conversationalist he had few superiors. He was frugal in his habits, methodical and painstaking in his work. He governed his diocese as much with his pen as with the crozier.

His Funeral

His funeral took place on Tuesday morning from St. John's Cathedral, Cleveland. Archbishop Quigley, of the Diocese of Cleveland, presided, and Bishop B. J. McQuaid, D. D., of Rochester, delivered the funeral sermon. Many were present.

Is It Indifference or what is it?

The question has often been asked and, indeed, with considerable reason. "Why is it that in France and Italy, countries so intensely Catholic, governments hostile to the Church are allowed to remain in power?" It certainly cannot be from any genuine love that those nations bear towards their despotic and godless masters; for every day they see their dearest and most sacred rights spurned, disregarded with impunity. Look at the moral map of those countries to-day. Scarcely a vestige of life is noticeable. Modern society in France and Italy, having no longer the Church for its basis, has reached the highest degree of ripeness for death. It bears within it a visible germ of general dissolution and decay.

Taking Part in Public Movements

The disaffection in which Bishop Gilmore was at first held by the non-Catholic citizens of Cleveland for his public utterances, has been thoroughly changed. Till 1871 he was a stranger. After his speech, most eloquent and patriotic, Bishop Gilmore gained and ever since held the esteem and respect of Cleveland's citizens. He held his position in Cleveland, O., May, 1870, when he was invited to speak at the Public Schools. He was treated in a thoughtful and respectful manner, and he held his innumerable and varied audience spell-bound. The address was copied fully or in part by the leading journals of the country.

In the Councils of the Church

In the Church he also held the position of a thoughtful and prudent prelate. In the fourth Provincial Council of Cincinnati, and Third Provincial Council of Baltimore, he took a prominent part in the deliberations. In the summer of 1885 he was delegated to the Archbishops of this country to go to Rome in the interest of the decrees of the B. B. B. Council, and to take part in the review and approval. This mission, performed in connection with two other Bishops who had preceded him to Rome, was most successful.

A Champion of Parochial Schools

Bishop Gilmore has a national reputation as a defender and promoter of the Catholic parochial school system. Feeling the want of good readers for the schools, he took a series of himself, as also a Bible History, published by him when a parish priest. He made it incumbent on the parishes of his diocese to have parochial schools when at all possible. March, 1877, he also published a code of rules and regulations governing these schools, one feature being the annual examination of the children by the parish priest, and an annual examination of district school boards composed of priests and laymen, of all pupils attending the parochial school. It was his aim to make these schools at least equal to the public schools.

Attempt to Tax Catholic Schools

In 1876 he tested before the courts what he considered the unjust taxation of the parochial schools of Cleveland. Although the Supreme Court of Ohio had decided the question in the celebrated Parcell-Gerke case, that Catholic schools were not taxable, one of the Cuyahoga county auditors (Mr. Woodruff) regarded as of the highest importance, placed the Catholic schools of Cleveland on the tax duplicate. The Bishop entered suit of restraint, the common pleas, circuit and supreme courts, deciding in his favor.

Memory, despoiled Pope Pius IX.

His Holiness forbade the Italian Catholics to take any active part in their national politics, but by so doing it might be inferred that they countenanced the spoliation of the Pontiff by the Sardinian King. Circumstances, however, have changed since the days of Pius IX, and his successor in the Chair of St. Peter, Leo XIII, has we presume, removed the restriction. This notwithstanding, it will take some time to school the Italian people into going to the polls and countenancing by their unanimous vote the usurpation of the Sardinian throne; but it is to be hoped that then Crispi's liberal on the term "popular government" will be forever swept from the fair face of Italy. The French people, undoubtedly still Catholic to the core, show signs of an awakening, and may soon prove that they have a vision in closing monarchies and expelling religious orders. The people of both countries seem to be beginning to realize that indifference, whatever it may have been once, is no longer a virtue.

A Miraculous Escape

On Wednesday evening, say the London Universit, 24th ult., Father O'Haire of A-bourne, while making the ordinary pastoral visitation of his scattered flock in preparation for their Easter duty, was in the act of crossing the branch line of the A-bourne railway, where there is very little traffic and seldom a train, when, to his horror he heard the danger whistle and saw a train rapidly approaching and nearly upon him. The officials had applied the brake, but were unable to stop the train in time. The Rev. Father was at the moment at every narrow bridge which spans the river D.V., near Normby. His first impulse was to jump into the river, but he did not; he must have leaped for the river is eleven feet in that spot, but in the dead emergency he flung himself down flat upon the line as the only chance of preservation from death. Just as he had passed on about six yards beyond where he lay it was brought to a standstill, to discover to the joy of the spectators and the deep gratitude of the priest, that the train had not touched him. He rose on the moment, and offered a fervent act of thanks to God for his nothing less than miraculous preservation.
