

WHERE DOCTORS FAILED TO HELP

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Restored Mrs. Green's Health—Her Own Statement.

Covington, Mo.—"Your medicine has done me more good than all the doctors' medicines. At every monthly period I had to stay in bed four days because of hemorrhages, and my back was so weak I could hardly walk. I have been taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and now I can stand up and do my work. I think it is the best medicine on earth for women."

—Mrs. JENNIE GREEN, Covington, Mo.

How Mrs. Cline Avoided Operation.

Brownsville, Ind.—"I can say that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done me more good than anything else. One doctor said I must be operated upon for a serious female trouble and that nothing could help me but an operation. I had hemorrhages and at times could not get any medicine to stop them. I got in such a weak condition that I would have died if I had not got relief soon. Several women who had taken your Compound, told me to try it and I did and found it to be the right medicine to build up the system and overcome female troubles. I am now in great deal better health than I ever expected to be, so I think I ought to thank you for it."

—Mrs. O. M. CLINE, S. Main St., Brownsville, Ind.

She's on the warpath again

She's always most active when the nipping winds set others shivering. They bring her out—bustling about to get ready that basin of warm, satisfying soup which looks so good, smells so good, and tastes—well, just try a basin yourself and see.

It's made of prime beef and the choicest of Irish vegetables. And as there's no over-strong, added flavouring, it's the making of any other soup or made dish.

EDWARDS' SOUPS

5c. per packet.

Edwards' Soup is made from three varieties—Beef, Tomato, and White. The Beef variety is a thick, nourishing soup prepared from beef and fresh vegetables. The other two are purely vegetable soups. Best for baby and invalid.

She was everything to him. He could have wished that North was almost anyone else than Nellie, and in his self this feeling gave its color to their interview, something of his wonted frankness was lacking. It was his unconscious protest.

"Very well, then, I will see Judge Belmont and some day when I can," said North, still struggling with his emotion and his pride.

"Don't speak of that!" exclaimed General Herbert hastily.

"This miserable business could not have happened at a worse time for me," said the young fellow with bitterness.

"Don't say that, John," pleaded Elizabeth. "For your friends."

"You and your father, you mean!" interrupted North.

"It is hard enough to think of you here alone, without—"

"Her voice faltered, and this time her eyes filled with tears. "I will not object again, Elizabeth, if you should suffer as much the worst part of the whole affair."

"Will your father agree to that?" asked North.

"I can't say how good and kind he is,"

"Indeed, I can; it is far beyond what I should have in place, I'm afraid."

"It has been so horrible—such nights of agony—"

"I know, dear," he said tenderly.

"They are not looking for other clues, and the man who killed poor old man McBride may be somewhere in Mount Hope at this very minute."

"Until I am convinced innocent, I suppose they see nothing to do," said North.

"But, John, you are not afraid of the outcome?"

"And she rested a hand on his arm."

"I don't suppose a really smart man will be able to clear himself, of course; the law doesn't often punish innocent men, and I am innocent."

"You have a certain confidence, and her face became radiant with the hope that was in his words."

"I have come to myself more than your share of my evil fortunes, Elizabeth, dear—I shall be a poor sort of a fellow if my gratitude doesn't last to the end of my days," said North.

"The general had shaken hands with the deputy and now passed the room to Elizabeth and North."

"We shall have to say good-night, North. Can you do anything before we go?" he asked.

"We will come again tomorrow, John, won't you, father?" said Elizabeth, as she gave North her hands. "And Judge Belmont will be here in the morning."

"She spoke with fresh courage and looked her lover straight in the eyes. Then she turned to the general."

"North watched them as they passed out into the night, and even after the door had closed on them he stood where she had left him. It was only when the little deputy spoke that he roused himself from his reverie."

"Well, John, are you ready now?"

"Yes," said North.

CHAPTER XVI.

Judge Langham sat in his library before a brick wood fire, with the day's papers in a heap on the floor beside him. In repose, the one dominant expression of the judge's face was pride, an austere pride, which manifested itself even in the casual interchanges of the day.

"The casual interchanges of the day," Judge Langham combined fewer intimacies with a wider confidence, and his many years of public life had taught him the universal respect in which he was held.

Now in the ruddy light of his own hearth, but quite divorced from any sentiment or sympathy, the judge was considering the case of John North. His mind in all its operations was singularly clear and dispassionate; a judicial calm, as though born to the bench, was habitual to him. He was not a man who had acquired acquaintance with John North dated back to the day John North first donned knee breeches.

He shaded his face with his hand. In the long procession of evil-doers who had come before him, North stood out as a singular case. The judge's mind was not a man who had acquired acquaintance with John North dated back to the day John North first donned knee breeches.

HE NOW BELIEVES IN "FRUIT-A-TIVES"

Because He No Longer Suffers With Headache

Taylorville, Ont.

"I was a sufferer from Fearful Headaches for over two years. Sometimes, they were so bad that I was unable to work for days at a time. I took all kinds of medicine, was treated by physicians, but yet the Headaches persisted."

"A short time ago, I was advised to try 'Fruit-a-tives' and I did so, with I must confess, with little faith. But after I had taken them for three days, my Headaches were easier and in a week they left me."

"After I had taken a box of these tablets, my head was quite cured. My appetite was always poor and my stomach bad—and now my appetite is splendid and my digestion excellent."

"I had become thin and weak from the constant Headaches, but now not only have I been cured of all these awful Headaches, but my weight is growing up once more, and I feel like a new man."

"BERT CORNELL."

Take "Fruit-a-tives," 50c a box, 6 for $2.50—trial size, 25c. At dealers or from Fruit-a-tives, Limited, Ottawa.

ACID-THROWING CHARGE LAID AT INGERSOLL

Lad Will Appear in Juvenile Court to Explain His Action.

[Special to The Advertiser.]

Ingersoll, April 1.—Acid throwing is an offence which, it is alleged, was committed by a 12-year-old boy of the town a few days ago, and who must appear in juvenile court and explain his conduct. It is claimed that he threw the acid on a young companion who sat next to him in the Red River expedition, and took part in the Red River expedition, when it was his privilege and his work to establish peace and harmony in that distracted part of our country.

The British Empire in different parts of the world endeared his name to all those who appreciate the courage and British valor, of which he was one of the most prominent examples during the last century. He was not only a great soldier, but a distinguished man of letters and a perfect gentleman."

BOTH SIDES LOSE

Weak, worn-out nerves keep one in a constant state of irritability and excitement. The eyes are sensitive to light, and every noise jars on the overwrought nerves.

If children are about they are a constant source of annoyance and irritation. Every door seems to slam, and a little extra excitement or exertion leads to wakeful nights, nervous headache or indigestion.

In this condition women are likely to be hysterical, and suffer greatly at regular periods. The nerves must be nourished back to vigor by such treatment as Dr. Chase's Nerve Food. Being gentle and natural in action, this food cure is highly prized by women, and used with most remarkable results in building up the broken-down nerve cells.

In a few days after beginning this treatment you will find yourself resting and sleeping naturally and taking your food with a greater relish. As vigor is restored to the system it will be apparent in improved complexion and building up of the tissues of the body.

With the nerves revitalized the organs of the body resume their natural functions, and weakness and disease give way to new hope and confidence, new vigor and health.

Dundas Street Complaint.

To the Editor of The Advertiser:

Is there any way of putting a stop to the race course business that is done on Dundas street, from Wellington street to Adelaide, and back on Sundays especially? There were nine motorcycles going as fast as ever they could race back and forth Sunday, not counting all the livery rigs driven by young boys and men; single rigs with three and four men in, racing, it makes one think of the livery horse that was driven to death last summer. It then commences again in the evening, and is kept up until 12 p.m. What with all that and the autos, it is all one can do to cross the street with safety. The police don't seem to be in that part of the city. It would be well if one or two of the humane society officers could see after some of the livery horses and put a stop to the way they are driven. This can be verified by the residents of Dundas street.

Following an investigation Scott was arrested on a charge of attempted murder, laid by his partner and treasurer of the company, H. B. Lewis.

TRIBUTE TO WOLSELEY IN CANADIAN COMMONS

Premier Borden and Sir Wilfrid Laurier Refer to the Great General.

Ottawa, March 31.—Canada's appreciation of the empire's loss in the death of Viscount Wolseley was expressed in the House today by the Prime Minister and by the leader of the Opposition. Both recalled the part played by the deceased soldier in the history of Canada, as leader of the Red River expedition in 1870.

When the orders of the day were called Right Hon. Mr. Borden said:

"I take pleasure of this opportunity to make a brief reference to the death of Field Marshal Lord Wolseley, whose funeral took place today. We all know that Lord Wolseley had a long and very distinguished career in the service of the empire. He served first in the Crimea, afterwards during the Indian mutiny, subsequently in China, in Egypt, and elsewhere. His name is associated with the early history of this country, inasmuch as he commanded the Red River expedition. His services to the empire having been so great, and having the association with the deceased soldier in the history of the Dominion, it seems only proper that a reference should be made to them today, and that we should express our appreciation of only of the great soldier rendered to the empire in so many ways, but our appreciation of the loss which the empire has sustained in his death."

Laurier's Tribute.

"The remarks which have fallen from my honorable friend the Prime Minister are certainly most timely and undoubtedly express the views entertained today on the loss to the empire in the death of Field Marshal Viscount Wolseley. I am told enough to remember the early days of Viscount Wolseley, when, as a young officer in the Crimea war, he gave the first evidence of his courage and ability which marked his subsequent career. I cannot fail to remember his associations with Canada when he was one of the officers in the garrison stationed in Montreal, and took part in the Red River expedition, when it was his privilege and his work to establish peace and harmony in that distracted part of our country."

The British Empire in different parts of the world endeared his name to all those who appreciate the courage and British valor, of which he was one of the most prominent examples during the last century. He was not only a great soldier, but a distinguished man of letters and a perfect gentleman."
