GEORGE STALLINGS THREATENS TO PUNCH CONNIE ON THE NOSE

Two Managers of World Series Clubs Have Row Over Telephone—Players Are on Edge, and Excitement in Philadelphia is Intense.

[Canadian Press.] PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 8.—Unless all signs fall, the world's series of 1914 will be modelled along the lines of the great European war. The spirit of brotherly love, for which the Quaker is noted, appears to have been crowded into the background. The struggle for the premier baseball honors of the universe opened with a campaign of threats that read like bulletins from the front war zone.

Stallings On Outs With Mack. Manager George Stallings, of the Boston Nationals, threatened to punch Connie Mack, of the world's champion Athletics, on the nose, Director Twit, of the Department of Public Safety, threatens to investigate rumors of ticket scalping. To cap the climax, the weather man threatens rain for tomorrow, the day upon which the American and National League pennant winners are scheduled to open the series at Shibe Park in this city.

City Is Stirred. Not since the memorial struggle between the Philadelphia Americans and the New York Nationals in 1911 has this city been so stirred by baseball conflict. Both the players and their thousands of followers appear to take the coming contests with unusual seriousness, and it is certain that every inning of the series will be fought out to a finish with a grim earnestness that includes no quarter for the foe.

Record Demand For Tickets. Every hotel was crowded with baseball players, and spectators gathering for the final and most important clash of the season, but the congestion was a negligible quantity compared with that which prevailed in the offices when seats for the series were being handled.

White Sox Beat Cubs With Two Out in Ninth. Cheney Blew Up and Let in Three Runs After Fanning First Two Men.

Row Over Telephone. Statements and denials issued from the camps of the rival clubs help to keep interest keyed up to an unusual pitch. This is especially true of the controversy between the two club managers regarding the use of Shibe Park for practice today. Manager Stallings, of the Boston Nationals, accused Mack, of the Athletics, of unportsmanlike conduct, and during a telephonic conversation this afternoon threatened to punch the world's champion leader on the nose at the first opportunity. The trouble arose over Stallings' request for the use of Shibe Park for practice. He made the request to Manager Mack in person, and the Athletics manager assured him he was welcome to use the park at any hour except between 2 and 3 o'clock this afternoon, when the local club was scheduled to practice. According to Connie Mack, the Boston manager was satisfied, but when Mack asked Stallings today if he had accused the Philadelphia club of refusing to permit the National League champions to use the park the argument soon became both bitter and personal, and the hard feeling spread rapidly among the players, managers and partisans of the two leagues.

Players Are On Edge. Because of the trouble the Boston players confined their practice to the National League grounds. The Braves spent more than an hour in batting and
