ORDERS FOR SUNDAY WORLD

Should a Sunday World be issued to-morrow it will be delivered wherever ordered early in the morning. Leave orders at the office.

HANLAN AND THE AUSTRALIANS.

The Canadian Thinks the Cornstalks a Trifle Too Big for Him.

The ex-champion oarsman regards the cornstalkers as too big for a little man to tackle, but he must remember to be champion of the world all comers must be defeated. In an interview with a newspaper man, after the Hanlan-Clifford race at Sydney, New South Wales, the Canadian said: "I shall never forget his size; he is the biggest man I ever saw in a boat, and I don't want to row him any more—I prefer little men, and I think it is time, anyhow, that you Australians gave me a show with a man my own size. Now, I don't want you to think I am crowing, boatman like, o littleness, but it is to me extraordinary that all your scullers that I have rowed with are the biggest in the world. There is no part of the world where you would get four big champions of the sporting profession like Beach, Trickett, Laycock and Clifford.

William Beach is 34 years old, stands 6 feet 10½ inches without shoes, and weighs about 165 pounds in training. His physical measurements are as follows: Chest 42 inches; biceps 14 inches; forearm 12 inches; calf 15½ inches. He is of swarthy complexion. Thomas Clifford is 30 years old, stands a shade under 6 feet, and weighs 170 pounds. His chest measurement is 43 inches; biceps 14½; forearm 12½; and calf 16. He is blue eyed, whiskered and bald headed.

Commenting on the foregoing Turf, Field and Farm says: "This betrays a petulant spirit not usually found in a man thoroughly well. He who holds the badge of championship is expected to cheerfully defend it against giants as well as pigimies. Letters received in this country from Hanlan just previous to the race go to show that the climate had weakened him, and that he was not in the pink of condition when he started. Beach is an extraordinary man, but we shall not concede him the superior of Hanlan until we see the two meet in this country, where the ex-champion will have the benefit of the advice in his training of the men who watched over his career when he was rising into fame. These men know his weak points as well as his strong ones, and they will stand by him, provided they can have full control of his movements. The purse of $6,000 for a race of five miles on the Lachine course is as liberal as could be desired, and Beach should not hesitate to start for it. Wallace Ross will not go to England if Beach will come to America. He will take his chances at Lachine with Hanlan, Beach and all comers."

Dog Sports Club Sports.

The Toronto dog sports club has already arranged its program of races to be held in connection with the bench show, to be held at the Horticultural gardens on Friday and Saturday, May 15 and 16.

First and second prices will be given in each race. Entries will close on Saturday, May 9, with the following: W. Clow, 60 Colborne street; Cooper & Donnelly, Terrapin; J. Taylor, Dog and Duck; W. The entries for the Rockaway steeplechase meeting closed finally on April 15. Among the sixteen entries for the Hampstead Heath handicap, at $50 each, about four miles, are Miss Moulsey, Gilt edge, Williams, Feurette, Echo and Rose. On Wednesday a schooner endeavored to enter the western channel, but could not drive through the ice.

Yesterday the schooner Mary Ann arrived from Oakville. She makes the second arrival of the season.

We are inclined to believe that the f
