ORD RANDOLPH CHURCHILL WILL SUPPORT THE MEASURE.

Letter from Mr. Gladstone to the Miners in the North-Lord Hartington Says the Unionists Should Firmity Resist Agitation Against the Wist

LONDON, April 9.—In English politics there is still little to mention beyond the extension of the anti-coercion campaign, Many members have left town, most of them having paired until the end of next week. Lord Randolph Churchill will address several meetings in support of secondary and Hardington. ings in support of coercion, and Hartington will also speak in public. Highwork D.T., April 9.—An immense prairie fire is raging about a mile south of town, and driven by a strong wind from the south, called out the citizens 150 strong yesterday. A fire break, two miles long, was made, and the town is now free from danger. At 3 o'clock the temperature was ninety-three in the shade.

A Manifesto to the Miners.

London, April 9.—Mr. Gladstone to-day issued to the miners in the north of Great Britain, a majority of whom are enthusiastic ollowers of him, the following letter, which the meeting which is to be held in Hyde Park next Monday and to which I understand tens of thousands of the workingmen of Lon-don intend generously to devote their holi-day. If ever there was a time when it was to the interest of the English workingman to be-think himself, this is the time. It is the first tains himself, this is the time. It is the first time when a enercion bill, if passed, is to be passed by England's vote alone against the vices of Scotland, Ireland and Wales. It is the first time when such a bill will have been passed finder the sanction of the householders at large, who were never onfranchised before the elections—in 1885 and 1886. It is the first time that coercion has been proposed without any attempt by the ministry to show, what we know they cannot show a state of gretted that the Government is compelled again to resort to coercive measures, although Liberal statesmen have not shrunk on former occasions from proposing in similar circumstances legislation of exact. If not greater severity. It is my firm conviction that the desire which compelled the Government to resort to this policy is not spoutaneous and is not mainly caused by unredressed grievances. It is the result of the determination of some leaders of the Irish people to prove that the government of Ireland by the Parliament of the United Kingdom is impossible and an attempt is being made to discredit both remedial and repressive legislation. In my judgment this attempt ought to be firmly resisted by the Unionists, both Liberal and Conservative."

The French troops are unable to cope with the pirates and reinforcements are much needed. The bricklayers and hod carriers have officially amounced their desire to help the carpenters. The following communication was received at the carpenters' headquarters this morning:

the elections—in 1885 and 1886. It is the first time that coercion has been proposed without any attempt by the ministry to show, what we know they cannot show, a state of exceptional and flagrant or growing crime. If England is to coerce Iroland for crime, Ireland can reply that relatively to population she has less crime than longland. In my opinion the rejection of the bill is even more needed by England than by Ireland. For Ireland it is a question of suffering, and she knows how to suffer. For England it is a question of shame and dishonor, and to cast away shame and dishonor, is the first business of a great hation.

In 1876 a recting of London workingmen first gave effectual force to the movement for England; which brought about, the election of 1880. May the meeting of Monday next ring the death knell of the worst, the most insulting and the most canseless coercion bill ever ambinited to Parliament.

Mr. G. M. On this point I speak of course, for nyself, but I believe the statement applies as much to the other members of the board. The Government have been very fair.

"With reference to the localities which are sepected to suffer most from the withholding of licenses, there is no foundation for the supposition that the commissioners have practically decided what applications shall be granted. AN OPPRESSIVE DECREE. and the United States.

Washington, April 9.—A State Department officer, speaking of the decree promulgated in Germany declaring that a German citizen remaining away five years or more from Germany and becoming a naturalized citizen of any other country would thereby become liable to expulsion from German soil, said: "As soon as it is enforced, it will involve the United States in diplomatic difficulties with Germany. Of course it is primarily intended as a bar to emigration and naturalization, Many Germans who think of coming to this country will reconsider their determination when they know that it virtually make a return to the Fatherland impossible. It will, no doubt, keep many Germans at home who would otherwise emigrate. But suppose a German-American citizen chose to return to his native country in spite of the prohibition, and he were imprisoned or forcibly removed from German territory, would he not at once appeal to the American Minister? and could this country submit to its citizens being treated as suspects when engaged in lawful and penceful business?" It May Cause Trouble Between German and could this country submit to its citizen being treated as suspects when engaged in lawful and peaceful business?"
