Rome, July 8.—There was rejoicing at the Vatican and in ecclesiastical circles generally yesterday over the finding of the valuable sacred objects which were stolen from the treasury of St. Peter's last Friday night. It is even rumored that a solemn ceremony of thanksgiving will be celebrated in the near future, this having been recommended by Pope Pius, who is reported to be delighted over the speedy reparation for the violation of the sacred territory of the Vatican. The Vatican officials are taking steps to provide for closer vigilance over the irreplaceable church treasures.

The road to success is never made shorter by crooked work.
