

AMERICAN NEWSPAPERS.—There are about three hundred daily newspapers in the United States. A first class daily paper in the large commercial cities has generally about twelve editors and reporters; forty printers; two proof readers; thirteen pressmen, engineers, and other employes in the pressroom; half a dozen correspondents in Europe; two or three regular correspondents in Washington; thirty-five persons in the clerk, wrapping, and mailing departments, and about as many more engaged as carriers.—The Crystal.

The recorded history of the Japanese Empire commences about the time of the Hebrew prophet Jeremiah, or near the year 660 B. C.—Idem.

"A very ugly man, who was a great horticulturist, being found by a visitor perched up in a cherry tree, his friend exclaimed—'No wonder, Philip, that you have the finest fruit in the country, for you are not only your own gardener, but egad, your own scarecrow too.'"
