REPORT OF THE SPECIAL COMMITTEE ON THE
DISABLED AND THE HANDICAPPED

*Progress
Report*

"The single point that the Committee wants to make here is that Canada has always prided itself on its humane foundations of government. It is precisely in times of economic, political and social strain that the true humanity of a people is proved. In those times, in these present times, a country decides whether it is a nation which includes everyone, or whether it is an economically segregated society, which includes as full members only those who can pay the price of admission."
