

BINDLE

- BROAD ARROW "This is a book to send to one's friend in the hospital. It should ably second the efforts of the medical man."
- CLARION "You must read 'Bindle,' he is just the man for the boys who are fighting and those whose fighting days are over."
- PUNCH "Mr. Herbert Jenkins is a humorist. . . . When Bindle is 'binding' he never allows his victims a dull moment."
- DAILY NEWS "Bindle is of the Dickens world. So are his friends and relations . . . it is impossible not to laugh. Bindle should 'go.'"
- JUSTICE "Not for a long time have I got so many good laughs out of one volume."
- BYSTANDER "'Bindle' is delicious. Just the sort of book for you when you have finished a hard day's work and wish to forget the war until next morning."
- DAILY TELEGRAPH "The British public will take Bindle to their hearts. Laugh we must. We have only one fault to find with 'Bindle,' there is not enough of it."
- BOOKMAN "Bindle is a real joy. Readers must be dull dogs indeed if they cannot find much that is ticklesome in the quaint and comical things that the cockney Aristophanes has ever on the tip of his tongue."
