ENEMY ONSLAUGHT APPROACHES NEAR

Germans Plan Main Thrust on Sector of Arras-St. Quentin.

TANKS WITH NEW GAS

Same Tactical Methods as Captured Riga Will Be Employed.

British Army Headquarters in France, Feb. 19.—The great German offensive on the western front may be expected to begin at any moment, and as far as the British front is concerned, the main thrust will be made on the sector between Arras and St. Quentin.

Accordingly the German troops are being told that surprise attacks, such as were used in Galicia last summer, at Riga and on the Isonzo, are to be tried against the allies on the western front.

Much stress has been laid on the fact that tanks and a new gas are to be used, leaving the infantry little to do but to walk thru the gaps and consolidate the positions captured. German troops have been trained to make long approach marches and then to storm enemy positions after a short gas shell bombardment. Those obstacles which the German artillery fire has not obliterated will be rushed by the troops or ignored. The German infantry will rely on weight of numbers, masses of machine guns and mobile batteries to finish the work begun by the tanks and the gas.

Word has been passed out by the German high command that few of the allied troops will survive the effects of the tanks, the gas and the bombardment, and that fresh German infantry will overcome speedily any resistance offered in captured positions.
