

RESTORER OF YOUTH ARRIVES IN NEW YORK

Dr. Voronoff, "Monkey Gland"
Surgeon, To Explain Operations.

Successful.

New York, July 30.—Dr. Serge Voronoff, the distinguished European surgeon who recently started the world by announcing the restoration through gland grafting of youth and vigor to the aged or sickly, reached this country yesterday on the French liner France.

The surgeon, who is director of the laboratory of experimental surgery of the College de France and a naturalized French citizen for the last twenty-five years, is a vigorous upright man of 52 years, standing six feet four inches and weighing close to 200 pounds. His head is covered with a growth of brown hair neither thinned nor frayed by age and his moustache is likewise dark.

Although reports of remarkable returns of youth and vitality to his patients have reached this country already, Dr. Voronoff is inclined to be cautious about admitting too much concerning his results. Speaking deliberately, though correct English, he said in answer to a question concerning his progress:

"The operations on human beings have recently been begun. It is impossible at this moment to state definitely that they will prove a complete success, but every symptom observed up to the present time points in that direction."

Dr. Voronoff said he came to this country on his first visit. He is married, the daughter of the late Jabez A. Bostwick, a large holder of Standard Oil stock. Mrs. Voronoff is now at home, at 800 Fifth avenue, to settle the estate of her mother, who died recently. Dr. and Mrs. Voronoff will return to France in about a month.

Asked whether he intended to perform any operations here, Dr. Voronoff said: "I would be glad to show American surgeons just how I perform an operation. The glands of a chimpanzee are necessary for this purpose. Anything I can do toward revealing my methods in an actual operation and in other ways will be gladly accepted. I am showing films showing actual operations. I will be glad to show these before medical bodies and to give lectures."

Dr. Voronoff said he had recently published a book, "Vivre," in Paris explaining his work. He said he had been a youthful vigor through the transplantation of interstitial glands of young monkeys to aged men.

Although born in Russia, Dr. Voronoff became a naturalized French citizen and is more at home in French than in any other language. He was born in 1868, and in 1910, he was chief surgeon to the Khedive of Egypt, and established a hospital at that time in the Heliopolis district.

Later he became a professor in the Ecole de Medicine in Paris. At the outbreak of the war he was the chief surgeon in the hospital at Bordeaux.

During the war, Dr. Voronoff performed many remarkable operations. His success in grafting skin and later in grafting bone for purposes of repair in the field of the transplantation of living material, and finally to the transplantation of glands, for the purpose of restoring vitality to human beings were carried out, with remarkable results.

The fatality occurred when James R. Wood, the husband of Mrs. Wood, went into the backyard to shoot a house cat which had been killing their chickens.

"I'm going out to kill that cat before it gets more of the poultry," Wood said, as he started into the backyard with a .32-caliber revolver.

Mrs. Wood followed him. It was then nearly dark. After searching about the premises for several minutes, in which he had walked some distance from his wife, Wood saw what he believed to be the cat and fired. The moving object was his wife. The bullet struck her upper arm and passed into her heart. Mrs. Wood died instantly.

THE REMODELED DOWLER STORE ONE OF THE FINEST IN CANADA.

The remodelled Dowler store is beyond any question one of the finest men's stores to be found in any city in the Dominion. Essentially modern in every detail, it adds materially to the shopping facilities of London and the surrounding territory.

The layout of the new display windows is most efficient and designed after considerable experimenting by the Dowler firm in their own stores and shops in Western Ontario. The unique arrangement of these windows gives a maximum display frontage and at the same time a very convenient and attractive entrance to the store.

To those interested in the progress and growth of the city such enterprises will be glad to show these before medical bodies and to give lectures.

Investigates Radials OUTDOOR DANCINGS

Folk Lore Society Stirs Much
Interest in Neglected Amusement.

London, July 30.—"Twas surely the devil who came to dance and asses to bray" is a point of view that still can be met with among the people of the London and provincial districts.

The Folk Lore Society and its kindred institutions made an attempt to bring about a revival of the English country dances, and to that end Morris dancers gave demonstrations of the art in many of the London and provincial districts, creating a large amount of interest thereby.

This summer season many of the parks have provided a railed-off space on the grass around the band stand, where, on payment of a small fee, the people can indulge in dancing on the green to their hearts' content. The plots have been inclosed all the winter and the gardeners have kept them free of the grass 'till the ground would almost serve for bowls or first-class tennis courts, and the revival of outdoor dancing as a form of evening amusement has caught on.

The innovation has met with the approval of that section of the community who really ought to have been included in the list of those who are to be kept in the 'kill joys' they are already on the warpath to try to prevent the revival of the old-time dances.

The Little Souls of Blackheath have asked for permission to permit dancing on the green at Blackheath without the usual restrictions. The council has refused to allow the Alexandra Palace authorities to hold either concerts or dances in the grounds of the park, and the council has refused to allow the Alexandra Palace authorities to hold either concerts or dances in the grounds of the park.

The chief of Montmartre's Intellectuals. The cafes and cabarets provided a procession of 5,000 persons who marched to the Place du Tertre, on top of the Holy Hill, back of the Sacre Cour, where Mr. Jules de Macdonald, wearing felt slippers and a woolen scarf, unveiled a statue to "Elaevir Mercurio," a statue of a woman, which was glorified as having spent 96 years in Montmartre as a philosopher, philanthropist and explorer. Du Tertre never existed, but in the hearts of the Montmartrois Paquet proclaimed "he will live forever, and his name will be written on the wall of the future."

The bizarre ceremony was a real success. The veil dropped and an abnormal sculpture of an hypothetical woman was revealed, head down, arms outstretched, to receive the hands of hundreds of pedestrians who pass it by.

Revived in Britain SEALED GLASS CASE

British Scientist Makes Daring
Experiment in Interest of Aviation.

London, July 30.—Six days sealed up in a glass case is a daring experiment bearing on aviation which has just been carried out by a middle-aged British university professor, Joseph Barcroft, F. R. S., reader in physiology at Cambridge University.

The question involved was whether it would be possible to calculate the quantity of oxygen necessary to an aviator at high altitudes. The case in which Mr. Barcroft was shut up for six days was specially erected in a quiet room in the physiological laboratory. It was about seven feet high and about ten feet broad. The floor and roof were made of glass, hermetically sealed, and divided into two compartments—one fitted with a lounge, chair and table and the other with a simple bed.

At the foot of the bed was a pedalling apparatus consisting of the frame of a bicycle from which the front wheel had been removed, and a small black wheel with a frame attached, to enable Mr. Barcroft to get some exercise and cause a certain amount of work to be done.

During his six days in this case Mr. Barcroft was not allowed to work, rest, or to the experiments, in taking exercise on the bicycle and in sleeping. He was kept under observation day and night to insure his personal safety, college students and others taking it in turn to watch him.

Nitrogen was continually introduced into the chamber and the air became gradually enriched in oxygen until it approximated that at an altitude of 16,000 feet, when Mr. Barcroft, who has had considerable experience in the use of a bicycle, was found to be in a state of considerable sleepiness, and also an inability to get on his feet.

At the close of the experiment some blood was taken from Mr. Barcroft's arm. The question of whether the work was separated and it was found to agree with the expectations of the experiment. Mr. Barcroft confessed to having felt rather shaken up after his release from the glass case, but did not look much the worse for his ordeal.

The experiment is regarded here as thoroughly successful and a scientific result. It is the desire to have a meeting of the British association, where Mr. Barcroft will be president of the physiological section.
