The Man In The Street

The picnic season's with us again, and ushered in a fine day.

But some people have been having a picnic for some time past—street railway and public works officials, for instance.

To say nothing of the censors.

Contrasting conditions at the time of Waterloo and today gives reason to believe that the old-time newspapermen were not worried with telephone calls on "What's the war news today?"

Still, even that wouldn't be a bore, if the party at the other end would be polite enough at the end to say "thanks."

Now that the open cars are again on the route, the end-seat hop once more occupies his favorite station.

Tramp on his toes when you're clamoring past, and he may be tempted next time to move.

J. K. Flemming might use his new car to take a run out to Manitoba and have a real good time skipping experiences with another ex-premier.

Every time Commissioner Potts looks twice at a section of street railway nowadays, the company gets ready to get out an injunction.

Every one who drives a vehicle over the scene of the recent street railway war, is glad that the work was accomplished, even if it did cost a bit of trouble.

Maritime provinces gave one-third of Canada's entire contribution for the Belgians, so far, does not look like hard times in this busy section of the country.

First thing we know someone will be starting the old argument about the relative value of home and foreign missions, and will want to take up a collection here for those Canadians not so fortunate as to reside in the maritime provinces.

But even the "boom" districts are getting on their feet again, as the country begins to realize that it takes more than a war of this size to produce real hard times in Canada.

All Modern Conveniences

A St. John man was stranded in one of the towns along the line and, as he had to reach the city early the next morning, he determined to leave on the Halifax express which passed through in the middle of the night. He announced this intention to the proprietors, expecting to be put down for an early call.

"How will you manage to get up that early?" the hotel man asked.

"Thinking that the question was intended as a bit of humor, the guest answered with what he intended for some light sarcasm: "Oh, I can manage it all right if you lend me an alarm clock."

"Sorry, but I can't do it; I just lent the alarm clock to another man," was the answer that left the city man gasping.

NEARLY SIX WEEKS BEFORE WATERLOO VICTORY KNOWN HERE

In One of T. McAvity & Sons' King Street Windows is Copy of Royal Gazette Containing Announcement

With the modern methods in vogue today it is possible to learn the news of victory or defeat before the last gun has been fired, but evidence that our forefathers were not so privileged is furnished in the display in one of these parts. The Royal Gazette Extraordinary, in the windows of T. McAvity & Sons, King street, is the property of Harry Lugin of the cutlery department and has been cherished as a family treasure from the time it was being printed by George K. Lugin, King's Printer, in Fredericton.

The document speaks for itself and needs no explanation, other than to draw attention to the manner in which the news of a victory which meant so much to the world, was received in this country, and the length of time it finally simmered through that Waterloo had been fought and won. More than six weeks elapsed before printed word brought the news of victory to many in these parts. It is dated at Fredericton July 27, 1815, and was sent with a Halifax date-line of July 23, 1815.

Must have taken five days for the interval of sending, arranging, and other detail. In bold type across the top appears the heading "Reported Defeat of Bonaparte, with the loss of 40,000 men and 100 pieces of ordnance."

Arrived last evening, ship Trial, Capt. Deblois, 36 days from London, and 25 days from Land's End. We have not any papers brought by her, a gentleman favored us with the following minutes taken by a passenger in the ship.

"June 26, off Plymouth, spoke one of His Majesty's ships, who informed us that war was declared against France 28d. June. Also spoke a pilot boat off the Isle of Wight, and gave us much the same news; 26th of June, spoke a Plymouth pilot, who informed us that Napoleon Bonaparte was signally defeated near Brunwick by the Allied Army under the command of the Duke of Wellington and Prince Blucher, that the battle lasted three days, and three nights, that the French lost 40,000 men and 100 pieces of ordnance. Jerome Bonaparte and several generals were killed. Napoleon made his escape from his carriage, on horseback, toward Paris. It was also mentioned that the French retreated precipitately for some leagues. It was reported that the Duke of Brunswick was killed in the battle.

The British loss is estimated at 1,000 men—40 field officers were among the slain.

The Duke of Brunswick's son was taken prisoner, and retained three times, and escaped at last.

George K. Lugin, King's Printer.

FLOWERS STOLEN FROM HIS WINDOW BOXES

While the window box idea for the beautening of the streets has been gaining ground in St. John, those urging it feel that it has not done so as rapidly as would be desirable. It is therefore to be handled in a business like way and make it easy for those who would be loath to use the boxes to secure them without too much trouble.

There is another side to the problem, however, as it was illustrated by the experience of W. G. J. Watson of Coburg street. Window boxes with blooming flowers were placed in his window on Thursday evening. By Friday morning the blooms in the boxes on the ground floor had all been plucked by passers-by and this morning even the plants had been up-rooted.

MERCHANTS' PICNIC TO BE LATER IN MONTH

Can Not Get All Ready by July 1—Red Cross to Benefit

The big picnic planned by the Retail Merchants' Association for July 1 has been postponed until later in the month, as it was found impossible to complete the elaborate arrangements within the time set. One of the problems, which has yet to be solved is the provision of adequate transportation for the picnic, and the entire gross proceeds will be turned over to the Red Cross Society.

A big programme of sports and competitions will be given, and the competitors will include some interesting features new to this part of the country.

The public spirit which has marked all the efforts of the retail merchants is again illustrated in their decision to make the outing a Red Cross picnic, as well. It is expected that all the refreshments on sale on the grounds will be donated by members of the association, and the entire gross proceeds will be turned over to the Red Cross Society.

NEW SYSTEM INSTALLED

The new derolling system installed at the C. P. R. crossing at the foot of Main street, Fairville, has been completed and is in operation today for the first time. It will now be unnecessary for the street car conductor to get out and see if the train is coming and this means a saving of about four minutes on a return trip of the car. This has always been recognized as a dangerous place and the new system is calculated to eliminate the possibility of accident such as occurred about a year and a half ago.

WAS MARKED SUCCESS.

A smoker tendered on last Thursday evening by their associate sergeants in the ranks of the 28th, at Sussex, to those going overseas with the draft selected now for foreign service, was a pronounced success. There was a general good time, with an excellent programme and a round of speeches in which best wishes for the men soon to leave for training at Valcartier preliminary to going overseas, were expressed.

Refreshments were served. Many happy speeches were made in the proposing and responding to toasts. The programme was as follows:
