

GOOD THINGS COMING TO THEATRES OF
ST. JOHN

DON'T MISS THIS FEATURE BILL

Tonight Will Be the Last
Chance to See Great Diving Act.

Those who have not seen the big feature act in the Opera House in which Traville, a trained seal and Grille, give a wonderful demonstration of diving, etc., have one more opportunity when the last two performances will be given tonight. This act is one of the best of its kind that ever came to this city and was brought here by the local management as a treat for the patrons. The cost of staging this act was great, but the pleasure derived by those who have witnessed it fully compensated for the additional expense and trouble. The seal shows marked intelligence and gives a wonderfully clever performance, while the man and woman are surely at home in the water.

In addition to this leading attraction there is Princess Nai Tai Tai, "A Chinese Nightingale," who has a pleasing musical offering. She is a well modulated voice and her presence captivates her audiences.

Brown and Dumont are also making a big hit. They have good voices and render some of the most popular of the well known southern melodies. They also have a real good line of chatter. There are two other good acts, which are also making a hit with local patrons.

To round out this stellar programme there is another chapter of the new motion picture serial, "The Black Secret." It is intensely interesting and gives promise of being one of the most popular ever shown on a local screen. Don't miss this feature bill.

PERSONALS

IRELAND

Dublin, Jan. 21—(Associated Press)—Assistant Commissioner of Police Redmond was shot and instantly killed in Harcourt street this evening. He fired two shots in self-defence. He was recently transferred from Belfast. The shooting occurred with in a few yards of the hotel where Mr. Redmond was staying. The dead man was forty years of age and had made great changes in the Dublin detective department, having placed in it several men from the north of Ireland.

Another constable was shot and badly wounded in Thurles while returning to his home last night.

London, Jan. 22—According to the Daily Mail's correspondent two men are believed to have been concerned in the shooting of Mr. Redmond. Both of them escaped. The street at the time was in semi-darkness.

The lord chancellor of Ireland was walking through the street when the shooting occurred. He stood and watched the gathering crowd, not knowing what had happened.

London, Jan. 21—A despatch from Thurles says a disturbance there, arose out of retaliation for the shooting of the constable. In some cases hand grenades were thrown into houses and shots fired through doors and windows.

"The residence of Charles Culhane, president of the Sinn Fein Club, says the despatch, 'was roughly treated.' Policemen searched the house for Culhane but he had left, declaring that he would be a dead man if he were found."

The Labor Delegation.

London, Jan. 22—The Daily Mail's correspondent who is accompanying the English parliamentary labor delegation, in a despatch to his paper, says:

"As he walked through the streets, Arthur Henderson, chairman of the delegation, said the scene recalled the ravaged villages of France during the war. The populace commented volubly in their excitement upon the great blessing we get from England's government."

"Constables when asked their version of the affair, spoke with equal excitement and anger and said they had been without sleep since Friday owing to an attack on a police station three miles away."

"The district has been seething with hostilities against the constabulary since the Sinn Fein started their limit of what flesh and blood can stand," said one constable. "No wonder some of our chaps were angry last night."

"The English visitors were deeply impressed with what they saw and heard and will carry back vivid stories of Ireland's state. It may reasonably be questioned whether any possible measure of home rule will be of any use. But what we have seen today in Thurles suggests that any change will be an improvement on the present state of affairs."

The delegates, the correspondent adds, had a long discussion with Archbishop Cullen on Irish conditions.

Tipperary, Jan. 22—The English parliamentary labor delegation which visited this city yesterday talked with the local officials of the Trades Union, who protested to them against the military closing the fairs and markets.

"They declared that this action had increased the cost of living 125 per cent, and that it was causing immense hardships to the poor."

THE PROUD MUSKRAT.

(Conservation.)

The plebian muskrat is coming into its own. Before the war, rat skins could be obtained from the trappers at from twenty to thirty cents each. "Fur Farming in Canada," published by the Commission of Conservation in 1914, quotes autumn muskrat skins in Eastern Canada at twenty-five cents for large skins and fifteen cents for small. Today, autumn muskrat skins are bringing in Quebec from $3.25 each for current collections to $4.50 each for the best rat skins.

Fashion is responsible for these high prices. Muskrat, when plucked and dyed, becomes Hudson seal. The demand has reached a point where there is danger of the extermination of this fur-bearing animal in Ontario, it can only be taken during the spring season, when it is claimed, the fur is at its best.

This increased price of the raw pelt is naturally reflected in the prices of Hudson seal coats, which, in 1915, were quoted by a well-known furrier as ranging from $400 to $450 and, in 1920, will probably be $600 to $650.

The present demand for skins and the high prices now being paid will probably lead to the establishment of muskrat farms in Canada.

ANTON LANG ALIVE

Passion Play Actor Writes New York Friends of War-time Hardships.

To correct a press report of some weeks ago that Anton Lang, who was the Christus in the Passion Play at Oberammergau had died, a Brooklyn woman forwards to The New York Times a letter just received from Mr. and Mrs. Lang. The letter, which is written in English, gives some idea of what the life of the players has been—

December 13, 1919.

Dear —: Your letter has brought great joy into our house; surely this has been a rare thing since long for life has become so different, ever since we heard last from each other. We cannot afford to write many letters abroad, though one would love to, but I must tell you that the terrible sickness was last year when we all of the household had been ill, past by and now we are all well again. We have gone through terrible trying years, but we also learned to know what hunger is like. None of us will ever forget the tramp winter, we almost lived with the animals.

My dear husband was much too delicate to be active in war service and also my brothers have returned safely. But we have lost seventy-four men from our village—some of our best youth. The year of our Passion play is coming nearer, but, alas, we shall not be able to have it in 1920. Peace has come, but no food with it. How could we feed outsiders, when there is scarcely enough for ourselves? Besides, we have no more engines, railroads, no coal. I suppose you are unable to imagine Germany's poverty. The tools we are to work with are taken from us. It seems as if we were to starve.

Still we dream of 1921, of a better time then. We do so long it to become true. The idea makes life happen again. We work terribly hard and feel worn out. Our six children are well. Baby Gottfried is eight months old and the war-child, Tilde, is five years. Karl, Tony and Maria are away at schools; only the three little ones are at home. We do thank you for the money. He had written you after receiving it. We hope that you are well. May Christmas be a very happy one, but New Year be blessed to you both. With greetings to you and all those we know as friends.

Very sincerely yours,

ANTON AND MATHILDE LANG.

The money referred to was sent by a group of people and was intended for an orphanage in which Anton Lang was interested and was sent before United States entered the war with Germany.

DEFEND RIGHTS OF THE MINORITY

Bar Association Adopts Hughes' Resolution, by Vote of 174 to 117, to Send Committee to Safeguard Representative Government.

The Bar Association of New York, voting after the longest and fiercest debate in its history, pledged its support to the five suspended Socialist Assemblymen at Albany, in their fight for reinstatement. A resolution announcing the suspension as unconstitutional and contrary to the spirit of representative government and calling for the removal of the five members from the bar was adopted by a vote of 174 to 117.

The resolution, moved by Charles E. Hughes, is as follows:—

"Whereas, This association regards with concern the action of the Assembly of this state in suspending from its membership the five members of the Socialist party who were elected to the legislature because of their membership in the Socialist party, and because of any personal unfriendly feeling it is hereby

Resolved, That this association is unalterably opposed to any action by the Assembly which is designed to deprive the members of the Socialist party of their right of membership in the legislature because of their membership in the Socialist party, and because of any personal unfriendly feeling it is hereby

Resolved, That this association is unalterably opposed to any action by the Assembly which is designed to deprive the members of the Socialist party of their right of membership in the legislature because of their membership in the Socialist party, and because of any personal unfriendly feeling it is hereby house at 855 East Tremont avenue, was the birth of a baby girl on the third floor while the firemen down-stairs fought to subdue the flames and the mother's husband, Raphael Jarot, stood guard at the threshold of his home with a bucket of water.

When the apparatus brought by a second alarm arrived, Dr. Archier, a fire department surgeon, learned of what was toward on the third floor and, after a whispered word to spur the men to extra effort, hurried there to assist a physician already in attendance.

The plucky mother kept her nerve, despite the clatter and clang and the smoke that drifted into the apartment, and the six-pound youngster arrived in an excellent condition, though no unusual circumstances had attended its advent.
