Bactru. Sweetness in Prayer.

Why dost thou beat so quick, my heart ? Why struggle in thy cage? What shall I do for thee, poor heart! Thy throbbing heat to surge ?

What spell is this come over thee ? My soul! what sweet surprise ? And wherefore these unbidden tears That start into mine eyes?

How are my passions laid to sleep, How easy penance seems! And how the bright world fades away-O are they all but dreams?

How great, how good does God appear, How dear out holy faith ! How tasteless life's best joys have grown ! How I could welcome death Thy sweetness hath betrayed Thee, Lord ! Dear Spirit ! it is Thou ; Deeper and deeper in my heart 1 feel Thee nestling now.

Whence Thou hast come I need not ask ; But, O most gentle Dove ! O wherefore hast Thou lit on one That so repays thy love ?

Ah! that Thou mightest stay with me. Or else that I might die While heart and soul are still subdued

With thy sweet mastery. Thy home is with the humble, Lord ! The simple are thy rest;

Thy lodging is in childlike hearts; Thou makest there thy nest.

Dear Comforter ! Eternal Love ! If Thou wilt stay with me, Of lowly thoughts and simple ways I'll build a nest for Thee

My heart, sweet Dove ! I'll lend to Thee To mourn with at thy will; My tongue shall be thy lute to try On sinners' souls thy skill.

Who made this beating heart of mine, But Thou my heavenly Guest? Let no one have it then but Thee, FABER And let it be thy nest.

For the Christian Watchman THE FALL OF SUMTER.

"I was on the promenade," said the America Captain, taking a long breath, "when the first gun was fired at Sumter.'

"I was looking out at the harbor. There it lay, its blue waves rippling, its green shores sweeping afar toward the Atlantic. Near at hand rose Castle Pinckney, further away on the left was the dark ontlines of Fort Moultrie, while still further in an opposite direction, was the outline of the battery of Cummings Point. At one point in the harbor was the famous floating bat-tery, which now was moved near enough to threaten the garrison, while beyond this, rose the massive fortification of Sumter, the last resting place for our people.

"Suddenly I was startled by the sound of a gun that burst from afar and thrilled through every heart in the city.

" It is done !' cried some one near me.

"Yes, it was done. Then sounded the first gun that gave the signal for the attack on Sumter. It was the announcement that the nation was divided, and that the race that had hitherto dwelt in happiness as brethren, on the most blessed land in all the world, would now be transformed to mortal foes, to rush at one another and stain the soil with fraticidal blood.

" The morning was cloudy, and drops of rain waiting for the sound. They had thronged the

The terrors of fire were now added to the ever great purposes for which Divine authority had set apart. I may be permitted to add, from the light of successive conflagrations flashed out grateful experience, that this decision has its reamid the gloom. So the little garrison had to ward even here. 1 have found that God 1 fight with shells and with fire. streets and the lanes. They had filled the esplanade. Porticoes, verandahs, and balconies, were crowded with people. Lights gleamed from the windows, from rooms filled with anxious watchers in breathless suspense. Every sound had startled them, every noise had aroused them.

"There were mothers whose sons had gone away to the contest, and now waited behind yonder walls into which the bolts of death would soon be hurlea. There were wives whose husbands were away in the midst of vonder scene. where soon death and fury, and all the horrors of war; would reign. There were maidens whose pale faces and nervous starts, told that their hearts were beating with agonies of fear for those who were dearer than life.

"Thus friend thought of friend, and the sound of that first gun was the signal for the outburst of every feeling that can agitate the human heart.

The streets were filled with a rushing crowd. On they went, flying to those points from which they could view the scene. Cries burst from them of alarm, joy, grief, exultation, and horror. These all came down to my ears mingled with the noise of a rushirg multitude, in one vast volume of sound.

I looked downward toward the harbor. It was from Moultrie that the first gun had been fired, and the smoke still hung about the fortress .-Others followed. Flash succeeded flash. Roar followed closely behind roar. The thunders of the successive explosions, rising from afar, came upward, and passing over the city, rolled in long reveberations far and wide around. The houses vibrated to the rude shocks of thiose tremendous reports, and the stone walls trembled to the noise of the cannonading

And now fort followed fort, and the attack commenced by Moultrie, was seconded by others in succession. Far down the harbor the storm burst forth from the battery at Cummings Point, and on the nearcr side, the floating battery poured forth a tempest of missiles.

At last the struck had fairly commenced, and the four court of the struck had fairly commenced, and the farmer, "but to whom shall I look for the from every side the bolts rose high into the air pay?" "Read," said the pastor, "when you and fell into the fortross. Shells hissed and first go home, the first three verses of the 41st moked on high, and then fell in thunder down. Red hot shot darted through the air to descend for payment, call on me." It was but a few days in smoke and flame. The air was filled with the stern of balls that poured from every side to one common centre. That centre was Sumter, which now stood receiving it all without response. Parapets fell, missed as a haughty actress dismissed an old friend. With a vehement prohibitive gesture she drove him back from the carriage step with "Pardon me—I atd my dress occupy the car-riage." An admiring father, who till lately delighted in his daughter's grace and lightness of move-ment and in her, elegant figure, now sees her de-formed and trammelled, when at the piano, in the dance, or simply sitting on the sofa. In the first case she can perform only at arm's length; in the second, she steers about like a great steamer on the view, which all heats care at a steamer in the second, she steers about like a great steamer first case she can perform only at arm's length; in the second, she steers about like a great steamer on the river, which all boats get out of the way of with all speed; aud in the third case, the specta-tor is rominded of nothing so much as the old way of bathing at Bath, when the ladies waded about in the ponds, finely dressed to the shoul-ders, while hoops and the waters concealed all below the waist. A girl at party now looks like a romp half hid in a haywork, or the aconite inshing up its blossom between two leaves; we

she had done : she had obtained the proportions of the Venus de Medici, and if the ladies were not satisfied with what would fit her, why, then their taste was not to be admired. What would the Venus de Medici and her devoted dress maker say to the spectacle of a pretty slim girl so smothered in apparel that, as she sits, she seems like a person up to the armpits in a feather-bed. -- [Westminster Review.

GOOD SECURITY -" Uncle Oliver," said the pastor of a country Church to an elderly farmer of his flock, "I wish you would carry a load of wood to old Mrs. W., the widow of our Christian brother who lived so long just beyond you or the road to D___." " I will try to do it," said
