

When an long an operation. The system had been greatly abused, both by Nova-Scotians and Americans, and a very small proportion of the bounty had been actually expended in the country. The Provincial fishermen themselves had been in the habit of carrying their bounty money down to Eastport, where they purchased articles subject to high duties in this Province, and then smuggled them into the States. But this was a very different matter from that which was intended to be done, and it was not until the year 1837, when the bounty was granted for the first time, that the system was reformed. The bounty was then granted for the first time, and it was not until the year 1837, when the bounty was granted for the first time, that the system was reformed. The bounty was then granted for the first time, and it was not until the year 1837, when the bounty was granted for the first time, that the system was reformed.

Mr. Jordan briefly opposed the bill. Mr. Hamilton contended that the fisheries were not to be protected, but to be improved. He contended that the bounty would do it, and that it was not to be protected, but to be improved. He contended that the bounty would do it, and that it was not to be protected, but to be improved.
