Look! Read! Realize!

We cater to the men's trade, and no other. If you were sick you wouldn't call to see a Tailor, or a Blacksmith, about the condition of your health. Of course not; you would call to see a Doctor.

If you wanted a Suit or an Overcoat would you go to see a Doctor, or a Shoemaker? Not at all. You would go to see a First Class Tailor.

WELL, there's where we shine!!! We study the business. We know what suits a young man we know what suits a middle-aged man, and we know what suits the old gentleman—both in goods and in style. It does not make any difference whether you want your clothes Ready-to-Wear, or Made-to-Order. We are equally in a position to suit you. We do not let a suit or overcoat leave our establishment until it suits and fits the man who is buying. Our prices are always right when you take the quality into consideration.

Do not forget that we are sole agents for the famous W. H. Leishman & Co., Wholesale Custom Tailors. We have an elegant stock of Overcoats to show you at the present time.

Overcoats, Made-to-Order-from..... $30.00 to $48.00

Overcoats, Ready-to-Wear..... $15.00 to $36.00

Success Is a Habit

Our habits make us. We are creatures of habit. Whether we are a success or a failure is a question of how we do things without thinking. To Succeed is the only way to Success.

Gloves

We have just the kind of Gloves you need, lined and unlined. Also Wool Gloves for this time of year. Suedes and Teds—both combination. Price..... $1.00 to $2.00

Underwear

Come and get your Underwear before it is all sold. We have all kinds—two-piece and tight and heavy weight. Prices per suit $1.50 to $5.50

Douai Is Historic

While virtually all of the fighting in the great war has been on historic ground, there are some places that stand out by virtue of their size, commercial importance, or sentimental or religious significance. To the first class belongs Douai.

Douai is known mainly to the world as the place of publication of the version of the Bible in use by English speaking Catholics throughout the world, but it has had a very considerable part in the changing history of that part of Europe. Situated about twenty miles south of Lille, in the heart of the principal mining and industrial district of Northern France and while not as widely known commercially as its neighbor, it contributed much of the wealth of France before its seizure by the Germans four years ago.

Back in the seventh century the site of Douai was occupied by a fortified castle known as Duncense. In the Middle Ages it belonged to the counts of Flanders; in 1384 it passed to the dukes of Burgundy; and in 1477, with the rest of the Netherlands, it became a part of the kingdom of Spain. In 1667 it was captured by Louis XIV and was ultimately ceded to France by the treaty of Utrecht.

The Catholics exiled from England in the sixteenth century, found an asylum at Douai, and for two hundred years the city was the centre of their activities and learning. In 1562, Philip II of Spain founded a university there in which several English scholars were given chairs. In connection with this university the celebrated English Jesuit College was founded in 1568 by William Allen, a Cardinal, who was forced to flee for his life when the wave of reaction against the Catholics began in England under Queen Elizabeth.

In Douai he not only found refuge, but he made it a training point whence priests were sent back to Britain as soon as the prejudices against the Church abated there.

The Scotch and Irish Catholics also had colleges in connection with Douai University and the English Benedictine and Franciscan monks had strong houses in the city. All of these survived until 1793, when the university was suppressed at the outbreak of the French Revolution.

Douai is situated in a marshy plain on the bank of the Scarpe river, which intersects the town and supplies water to a canal which skirts it on one side. The old fortifications of which the chief survivors dated from the fifteenth century, have mostly been demolished to make room for boulevards and public gardens for both of which the city was more than locally noted in the days preceding the German invasion.

There is an air of the ancient about even modern Douai, which is emphasized by the many houses and public buildings and churches dating from the sixteenth, seventeenth and eighteenth centuries. Of the churches, that of Notre Dame, begun in the twelfth century, is remarkable for the possession of a fine altar piece of the early thirteenth century, composed of window panels painted by Jean Bellegan, a native of Douai. The town hall, dating from the fifteenth century, was the principal building of the city before the war. Its lofty belfry was one of the landmarks of the country for miles around, and doubtless was made use of by the Germans as an observation tower and then destroyed.

Modern Douai is the seat of several courts and has a branch of the Bank of France. Its educational facilities include a school of mines, an artillery school and a national school for instruction in brewing and industries connected with agriculture.

A large cannon factory with an arsenal were features of Douai's industrial development.

MINARD'S LINIMENT CURES
GOUTS, ETC.

Manufacture of glass and chemicals was carried on extensively in the city and its environs.

Flax spinning, rope making, brewing and the manufacture of farm implements, oil, sugar, soap and leather also were industries that commanded considerable capital.

Trade consisted mainly of grain, agricultural products and building materials which was mostly water borne, the railway connecting the city with Lille and Cambrai being used chiefly for passenger traffic.

The population of the town before the war was about twenty-five thousand.

Catholics read what is termed the Douai version of the Bible. This translation from the Latin Vulgate of St. Jerome was made in the later years of the sixteenth century by English scholars at Douai. They started with the New Testament, which when published in 1578, was called the Rheims version because the seminary at that date was temporarily removed to Rheims. The translation of the Old Testament was completed about 1600, and is spoken of as the Douai version. It was among the versions closely consulted by the scholars who subsequently published the King James version.

The Catholic Bible, which we usually call the Douai version, is very much modified from that version. The famous Dr. Challoner made a thorough revision in the eighteenth century, and his revision is the Catholic Bible current.

The pealing of the bells morning noon and evening transports in of spirit the Catholic to Nazareth, where he hears what the angel announces to Mary after saluting her with the words, "Ave gratia plena." The reply of the Virgin espoused to a man whose name was Joseph, "Behold the handmaid of the Lord; be it done unto me according to thy word," recalls the truth that she conceived of the Holy Ghost, and thus the "Word was made flesh." "Verbum caro factum est."

The Incarnation involves the Redemption by Christ's passion and death and our consequent hope of the "glory of the resurrection."

The Angelus as a Catholic devotion has been in vogue since the middle of the seventeenth century.

The church bells of the thirteenth century represent the highest advances in bell making that have ever been attained. These beautiful bells in that great century were customarily rung at nightfall for the "Ave Maria." Pope John XXII, granted an indulgence to those who at the ringing of these evening bells should say the "Hail Mary" three times. These bells are still designated in Italy the "Ave Maria" and the time at sunset is called the "Ave Maria"—the close of the day of twenty-four hours, or twenty-four o'clock.

The morning "Angelus" had its origin in France, according to the famous Mabillon—the Benedictine historian who flourished in the seventeenth century.

In the year 1456, Pope Sixtus III, recommended the ringing of the church bells at noon to invite the prayers of the faithful against the Turks, who then threatened Christendom. In this circumstance we have an historic precedent for the noon prayer now recommended by the civic authorities for a victorious peace in favor of our country.

To designate this expression of faith in the work the "angelus" does not seem inappropriate in the light of historic developments.

CONSTIPATION, LIVER COMPLAINT, BILIOUS SPELLS.

When your liver becomes sluggish and inactive, the bowels become constipated, the tongue becomes coated, the breath bad, the stomach foul and sick, and bilious spells occur on account of the liver holding back the bile which is so essential to promote the movement of the bowels, and the bile gets into the blood, instead of passing through the usual channel.

The only proper way to keep the liver active and working properly is to keep the bowels regular by using Milburn's Lax-Liver Pills. They work smoothly and gently, and do not grip, weaken and sicken as so many laxative pills do.

Mr. James P. Colley, Hartford, N.S., writes: "I have used Milburn's Lax-Liver Pills for constipation and liver complaint. At one time I used to have a bilious spell every little while and once was in bed for four months. Since taking your pills, the bilious spells have left me, and I have regained my usual health."

When The Angelus Rings

Catholics appropriate to the word "Angelus" a distinctive meaning as the prayer recommended by ecclesiastical authority to be said three times a day in honor of the Incarnation—the mystery that forms the foundation of Christianity. The tolling of the bells as the signal for this indulged devotion is also termed the "Angelus."

The pealing of the bells morning noon and evening transports in of spirit the Catholic to Nazareth, where he hears what the angel announces to Mary after saluting her with the words, "Ave gratia plena." DYSPEPSIA

Words already in use are frequently applied to something new, but analogous to what they originally signified. Etymologically "angel" means a messenger; but now specifically signifies the pure spirits that minister before the throne of God and whom he sends as messengers to men as the angel was sent to the Blessed Virgin Mary.

The word "curfew" is now used in speaking of a signal by bell or whistle for the observance of some ordinance for the good of the public. Originally it was the signal for putting out the lights and covering the fire (feu—the word being taken from the Norman "couvrir feu").

Millet's picture of the "Angelus," so well known, easily tells the story of how this beautiful devotion infuses joy and hope in the heart of the toiler. To see a crowd of men in the city doff their hats for prayer, when the Angelus rings edifies a traveler in some parts of Europe. To witness a similar manifestation of Faith in God and trust in the power of prayer in our great country is the best evidence of the performance of our political freedom and of our certain victory over our enemies.

—Exchange.

Some time ago we were told that His Holiness Pope Benedict XV, had requested the German Emperor to respect the firm of Desclée & Co., printer to the Holy See at Tournai, Belgium; for it had been planned to turn the world-renowned artistic liturgical printing house into an ammunition factory for the benefit of the Germans. The Kaiser promised to spare it. Whether any ammunition was ever made there we cannot tell. Probably not much. But we learn from the most authentic source that the whole establishment was dynamited, willfully and coolly, so as to suppress competition to German printing firms. So all the beautiful liturgical books: missals, rituals, breviaries, etc., issued by this Society of St. John the Evangelist, are new, and will be for a long time, impossible to obtain. All the plates have been destroyed. Among others, are those of Father Tanqueray's theology, dogmatic and moral, a work that had obtained a world-wide success, and had accomplished so much good.
