The 'Libertie' Explosion. Speaking of the recent fatal sion on the French battleship herte,' the Paris correspondent London 'Truth' writes: 'On the mo row of the last great explosion the Roads of Houlon a guess was ha ardied as to the possibility of clima tic causes, and notably of ultra-viol rays, having had much to do in caus ing the catastrophe, M. Daniel Be thelot, taking his guess for his star ing point, has, as he thinks, estab lished to a certainty that the different explosions on battleships are due to ultra-violet rays. They decompose ranidly white and other kinds nowder just as they decompose issues of living organisms, and mak ant to explode spontaneously otherwise. The blowing up of a ves al laden with white nowder is all th more terrible from the greater fore that explosive. But, according t Berthelot, the powder invented his late illustrious father and vialle is not easier to decompose the ony other, if carefully made promises to search for a means rotecting men-of-war from the tacks of ultra-violet rave on nowd in their magazines. # Clementine Arrives in Port

Goodridge's brigtn. Clementin Capt. Tucker, arrived here yesterda, afternoon after a run of 57 days from Bahia via Barbadoes. She left th former port on the 7th December, and being short of water ran into Barbadoes for a supply when 29 days out. She made the run from that port in 26 days. After rounding Cape Race a week ago she encountered S. E. gale which pressed her in on the shore and only by skillful seamanship was she worked out of what a one period was a dangerous position The stormy weather lasted a long while and she drifted 120 miles N W. Wednesday the wind veered-t the south and she again made Cape Race and got down the shore. Cap tain and crew are well.
