London Presbyterian Council.

A Presbyterian Council has been formed in this city, the object being the securing of mutual counsel in all matters of common interest to Presbyterians, including the extension of missionary effort in the city and suburbs. It is composed of the various members of the several city sessions. Regular meetings will be held at stated times, with special meetings in addition when processary. It is believed the most times, with special meetings in addition when necessary. It is believed the meetings of this large joint family session will not only render more easy united action when desirable, but by drawing the various members of the different sessions together promote and continue that good feeling and personal acquaintanceship so much to be desired among those who have much in common.

At a largely attended and hearty meeting held Monday night m St. Andrew's Bible class room, the council was duly organized, with the following office-bearers: President, Mr. John Cameron; vice-president, Rev. J. A. Murray; treasurer, Mr. H. Johnson; secretary, Rev. James Ballantyne. The foregoing—with one representative to be chosen from each of the five city sessions—to form the Executive Committee.

Well Worth Reading.

Well Worth Reading.

Attention is drawn to the annual report published in another column of the Temperance and General Life Asswrance Company. The result of the year's business is a most satisfactory exhibit and proves that this excellent company is prepared to take its stand in the front rank of Canadian companies. The company is under the best of management, is careful in its selections of risks, and combined with these, its rates are as low as they can be, consistent with undoubted security. The increase in income for the year is more than the entire death losses for the year, the former being $14,800 and the latter $11,240. Assets increased $42,551 86, while liabilities only $36,901 82, the increase in assets being 15 per cent. greater than the increase in liabilities, which should certainly be very satisfactory to all concerned. The company's experience seems to indicate that what has been the experience of other companies, insuring mainly total abstainers is going to be its experience, viz.: That mortality is going to be lower than in companies that do not make this a special feature, as the mortality of the company has thus far been very low indeed, both in number of risks and amount of insurance ceased by deaths. Many readers will have a special interest in learning of the success of this company, as the Hon. G. W. Ross, president; H. Sutherland, manager, and J. G. Begg, secretary, are all widely and favorably known, as well as largely connected in this county, the president and manager having been born in the county, and the secretary having spent many years in business at the village of Melbourne. This sterling company should do a large business here, where the gentlemen who are responsible for its management are so well and favorably known.

The Great Maclennan Concert company from Scotland Will Appear on Monday Evening.

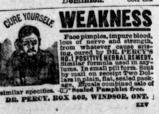

The Scotch Leader says of the Maclennan Edinburgh Concert Company, which will appear in London on Monday evening:
"If there is anything in the old aphorism that in 'union there is strength' the amalgamation of such a company, comprising, as it does, the very choice of the exponents of our music, dance and story, must attain the required result. This peerless organization has already made its debut in America. The reception everywhere accorded them has been more than usually warm, amounting in most cases to downright ovations." Below is given a photo of Miss Alice Steel, whose selections, the Toronto Mail said, showed Miss Steel to have her voice thoroughly in control, executing a brilliant trill, which electrified in the steel of the supplication of the

The Mail further remarks of the same lady: "Miss Steel, who fills the soprano part, comes with the highest credentials from leading masters, wearing a number of the trouble of the steel models on her breast the trouble of lady: "Miss Steel, who fills the soprano part, comes with the highest credentials from leading masters, wearing a number of gold medals on her breast, the trophies of many hard contests for supremacy in vocal tournaments. Her graceful manner on the platform is captivating and charming, and when added to the vocal gifts which she possesses in a high degree, her success was at once assured. She sang "Robin Adair" and "Auld Robin Gray," songs in their class which test the Scottish vocalist. The rounds of cheering which followed left no doubt as to what the verdict of the audience was. Her voice is of superb quality, and she has a wonderful mastery of it. Her vocal execution was magnificent, her range high, and her expression sweet and intelligent. She and Miss Edith Ross (who a year ago sang contralto with the Balmoral Choir in this city), are the only ladies of the company, and they without doubt are far and away the best lady exponents of Scoth minstrelsy who have visited Toronto for years. Their singing is a fair specimen of what is to be found among the best vocalists of Scotland, and they are to be heartily congratulated for the success their efforts scored last night. The quartet of singers in the company consists of these ladies and Messr. Fleming and Finlayson, the latter two both well and widely known in the old country as vocalists in the very first rank."
