Opposition Fall in Endeavor to Tle-up Songhees Reserve Question.

Bill Finally Passed—Other Measures Advanced — Good Progress Made.

Tuesday, March 14, 1905. The House assembled at 2 o'clock and after prayers by Rev. Dr. Campbell, the ng was the order of busine Mr. Bowser introduced a bill to amend the Dentistry Consolidation Act. Songhees Reserve.

On the third reading of the Songhees Reserve bill, Mr. Cameron and Mr. J. A. Macdonald again proposed amendments, which have already appeared in the proceedings, but the Speaker ruled them out of order on the ground that the House had already expressed on into a speaker ruled. the House had already expressed opinion Mr. Oliver then moved that "the bill

Mr. Oliver then moved that "the bill be read this day three months," offering in justification therefor an opinion that the bill placed a dangerous power in the hands of the government. As a suggestion that this power might be abused, he averred that, in the matter of the exchange of lands, to acquire a farm for the Westminster asylum, they had exceeded their statutory powers. ceeded their statutory powers.

The Premier commented humorously upon Mr. Oliver's seeming solicitude for the interests of Victoria, in contrast with the interests of Victoria, in contrast with the opinion he gave utterance to on for-mer occasions that its interests were only too well served at the Capital. He pro-ceeded to seek a reason for Mr. Oliver's persistence on this question.

Mr. Oliver did not think his motives should be discussed.

The Premier gracefully consented to withdraw any suggestion of motive, remarking that he would let it pass as being a frivolous waste of time and noth-

Mr. Murphy objected to the bill on principle. He wanted to know if the President of the Council (Mr. Cotton) would have been prepared to give such power to the Martin government. The motion to throw out the bill was put and lost on the following vote:

For McInnes, Drury, Brown, McNiven, Murphy, Jones, Evans, Tanner, Oliver, J. A. McDonald, Henderson, Munro, Paterson, Wells, Hall, Cameron—16.
The bill was read a third time and finally passed.

Mr. Hawthornthwaite had given notice of an amendment "that any legal rights or interests of the city of Victoria in the said land are not prejudiced or affected by such disposal," and sent it up to the Speaker after the passage of the bill, which had apparently escaped his attention. The amendment was accordingly ruled out of order.

was accordingly ruled out of order.

The bill to amend the Wellington Receivership Act passed second reading. The Finance Minister explained that owing to conditions in that place some years ago, an indebtedness of some $45,000 and assets amounting to $3,000 or $4,000, it had been necessary to appoint a receiver. This appointment expired in May last, and in order to give effect to the purpose of the act it was necessary to provide for the continuance of that appointment, and this was what

The bill to amend the Benevolent Societies Act was committed, Mr. Brown in the chair. This bill authorizes the government to cancel the licenses of "clubs," the conduct of which is adjudged to be contrary to the spirit of the act.

Mr. Macdonald suggested that the Mr. Macdonald suggested that the power to interfere with legitimate societies should not be placed in the hands of the government. It was never intended, he said, that clubs and gambling houses should be incorporated under the Benevolent Societies Act. He proposed an amendment that the power of interference should be restricted to clubs having sutherization to sail ligner. ing authorization to sell liquor.

Mr. Bowser contended that this would destroy the bill as there were only a few societies which had permission in their charter to sell liquor. On the other hand, there were glaring cases of abuse, in which the government might justly interfere. He mentioned a list of clubs in Vancouver which were operating under the Benevolent Societies Act, namely, the Elks' club, Unique club, Railway Porters' club, Chinese club, Japanese club, Balmoral club and others. Incidentally he observed that the president of the Railway Porters' club was now the content of the Railway Porters' club was now the observed that in Outario and other provinces the government was given similar power with respect to organiza-Mr. Bowser contended that this would observed that in Untario and vinces the government was given similar power with respect to organiza-

The wind then began to grow violent, making towing more and more difficult, for the Eulomene, being a large vessel and empty, with a great mass of cordage, offered great resistance to the wind. That night on the Dogger the position became sericus, for the wind increased to a hurricane with great head seas, so that at last the great steel hawser parted close under the bows of the Eulomene, and she fell away before the wind into the dark.

The tug stood by all night in the gale, looking for the helpless ship in the hope of passing a hawser on board. But when dawn broke over the wild sea it was empty of any ship. The Eulomene had disappeared.

There was a session of the municipal committee of the legislature last evening which is destined to be remembered for its tropical local color and fervid atmosphere for some time to come, Tourist Association executive was held yesterday afternoon, F. W. Vincent, vice-president, in the chair. Ald, Oddy, H. B. Thomson, J. E. Wilson, A. A. Anderson and B. S. Heisterman were present. It does not so much interest what happened in the ordinary course of the committee procedure until Mr. John Houston, the mayor of and member for the city of Nelson, proposed an amendment to the Municipal Clauses Act with reference to the proposal to dredge the Arm above the Gorge bridge, the minister of marine and fisheries wrote that the matter had been referred to the department of public works, and was under consideration. having for its purpose the alteration of the appointive control of police and licensing boards of commissioners in the cities of British Columbia. At the aware, the mayor of the interested community is ex officio a member of these boards, which consist of three members. One of the other two is a which as a rule accepts the advice of its supporters in the constituency. The third member of the board, an alderman, is nominated by the council and appointed by the government—which thus in reality appoints two of the board of three. Mr. Houston desired to amend the law in this regard, removing from the Lieut.-Governor-in-Council the appointment of the commissioner who now is nominated by the council, and giving the council the appointive power rather than the nominating privilege. It so happens that Mr. Houston, when he contested Nelson for the many when A writer from Camden, New Jersey, proposed to spend some time in Victoria during the coming summer. He wanted literature. Mr. H. B. Gregory, of St. Louis, wrote that one of his personally con-lucted tours will be here this summer.

It so happens that Mr. Houston, when he contested Nelson for the mayoralty a few months since, ran upon a platform which predecated several dismissals in the police department and the cancellation of a number of licenses in the town. He, of course, is a member of both commissions, but his colleagues do not see eye to eye with him, and he, therefore, is impotent to perform the things he contemplated when he received upon his neck the chain of official honor.

the things he contemplated when he received upon his neck the chain of official honor.

Mr. Bowser, of Vancouver, vigorously opposed the change, and intimated that it, like all the other political actions of the proposer, was dictated by personal interest in the premises.

And it was this line of comments which was taken by Mr. Houston for his cue. He said several things anent the government, the premier and the government, the premier and the member for Ymir which would not look well as transcribed for Hansard, and which in old Kentuck would go far toward increasing the mortuary returns.

Eventually the committee accepted the Nelson mayor's suggestion, and the proposal for the amendment of the act will go to the House with the recommendation of the municipal committee.

It would take a greater prophet than has yet arisen to say what will happen to it then.

POOR LITTLE CZAR.

T. P. O'Connor.

It is said that at this very moment the Czar constantly finds in the pockets of his coat, nay, even under his pillow, letters threatening assassination. Of course it is said by Liberals that these letters are placed there by the police, and just with a view to frightening him into further reaction. That may or may not be; whether it be a fact or not, the Czar cannot well tell. It is sufficient for him that thus in his very bedroom—the room in which he has to try and get his sleep—there stands the ghastly sceptre of assassination.

To ask for coolness of head, for steadiness of nerve, for tenacity of purpose, in such an environment, is to ask that the Czar should be one of those giants of men—a Caesar, a Cromwell, a Napoleon—who are thrown up just once or so in a century in the history of mankind. And the poor little Czar is not a Caesar, or a Cromwell, or a Napoleon. He is simply a small, low-sized, delicate little man, with soft blue eyes, and a ragged and tow-colored beard, and a small, weak mouth; it is almost as pitiful as seeing a child face to face with the open jaws of a tiger as to see this delicate weakling face to face with revolution.

This led Mr. Foster to remark that he would not dispute the statement now, but if a bill came in from the successor to Mr. Sifton he would take occasion to deal with the alleged practice in straightforward terms. Mr. Sifton, who was sitting in the ministerial benches, jumped to his feet and advancing across the floor to the middle of the clerk's table, asked Mr. Foster what charge he had made against him. Mr. Sifton, being hard of hearing, had evidently misunderstood Mr. Foster's remark, but when Mr. Foster replied in the most courteous tones that he had based his statement on Mr. Prefontaine's version of the alleged practice of carrying off spoils, and that he would not believe, even on ministerial authority, that Mr. Sifton people he guitty of any even ing off spoils, and that he would uet believe, even on ministerial authority, that
