

- In 1994, Canada's merchandise exports to the United States increased 23 per cent to $185.2 billion, while imports from the United States rose 20 per cent to $136.6 billion.
- The automotive, forestry and energy sectors dominated Canadian exports to the United States in 1993. Collectively, they represent about half of all domestic exports to the U.S.
- Principal Canadian imports from the United States include machinery and transport equipment, other manufactured goods, industrial supplies and foodstuffs.
- Trade in goods and services between the two countries now supports more than 1.5 million jobs in Canada and directly generates 25 per cent of Canada's gross domestic product (GDP).
- By year end 1994, U.S. direct investment in Canada had reached about $96 billion, or almost 65 per cent of foreign direct investment. Canadian direct investment in the United States reached $67.7 billion.
- The value of two-way trade, including services and investment income rose 19.5 per cent to $403.2 billion in 1994. Since implementation of the Canada-U.S. Free Trade Agreement in 1989, two-way trade, including services and investment income has increased by more than 62 per cent.