

CHAPTER	PAGE
XXIV. THE DUEL . . . . .	224
XXV. THE COLONEL'S FUNERAL . . . . .	235
XXVI. WILFRID'S DELUSION . . . . .	247
XXVII. A DEAD CALM . . . . .	263
XXVIII. A TERRIBLE NIGHT . . . . .	274
XXIX. A VOLCANIC ISLAND . . . . .	286
XXX. WE BOARD THE GALLEON . . . . .	297
XXXI. THE FIRST NIGHT . . . . .	308
XXXII. THE GALLEON'S HOLD . . . . .	321
XXXIII. THE SECOND NIGHT . . . . .	334
XXXIV. CONCLUSION . . . . .	348

'SIR WILF

It was h
in Bury Str
hand, seltze
newspaper,

'Sir Wi

My cour
with a fanc
'Show him

Sir Wil

nervousness
then he can
to make sur
who was lin
surprised o
astonishmen

He stood something a indefinable
in his form
four years o
and plentifu
had a prot
broken for t
nostrils. H
and earnest
ing into the mental wea
liantly white
into a most