HEINTZMAN

A true masterpiece represents the highest degree of achievement. What the name Michael Angelo stands for in sculpture—what Raphael signifies to the painter—what Stradivarius means to the violinist, that wealth of meaning the name Heintzman conveys to the pianist and to the great music-loving public of the world.

The Heintzman is in truth "a masterpiece," a work of surpassing excellence. No other piano can compare with it. Three generations of Heintzmans, for 65 years, have kept it far in advance of all possible rivalry. Made by

OPPOSED TO PROBATE OF WILL OF FATHER

Children of Late Isaac Moody
Allege Incapacity and Undue Influence.

In the non-jury assizes yesterday afternoon before Justice Hodgins the action of the National Trust Company for an order to admit to probate the will of Isaac Moody was resumed. Mr. Moody, who was 50 years of age, died last June 25, leaving an estate valued at $60,333. The will is being attacked by Alf. Moody, Albert Moody, Harriet Alf and Elizabeth Robertson, children of the deceased, who allege undue influence. The will is dated April 14, 1914.

Dr. Glendening, the first witness called, stated that when he saw Moody after the first paralytic stroke he was incapable of transacting business. The day before Moody suffered his second stroke. Dr. Glendening was asked over the telephone by a firm of solicitors whether he considered Moody in a fit condition to make a change in his will. The doctor said that his reply had been no. Dr. Clarke of the General Hospital also stated that Moody was in no condition to transact business.

The defendants say that their brother, Isaac Moody, and a grandchild, Mabel Plaisant, urged the testator to

BELTS AND GIRDLES OF KID OR BRAID

Many of This Season's Designs Lay Stress on the Waistline.

SOUTACHE TRIMMING

Furs and Fancy Ribbon Edge
Many of the Satin Models.

With the acceptance of the distinct and lowered position of the waistline, belts and novel girdles have again come into favor, and are being featured on many of the season's prettiest one-piece frocks, tailor-made, and even the more elaborate models intended for afternoon wear.

In Paris there is a general craze for the leather or kid belt for street wear, many of the exclusive creations, severe and almost unbroken, being made by the patent or white perforated kid belt worn a little above the normal waistline. Other pretty effects are achieved by using any of the season's popular metallic ribbons in gold, bronze, or silver, length of the wide soft ribbon fashioned into a soft circle, and fastened with a twisted ribbon buckle and long ends, is a pretty finishing touch to an otherwise plain line frock.

Girdles of Satin.
Quite a number of the newest girdles are made from soft white satin, and edged with fancy ribbon, soutache—which is once again the popular ornament for belts—or fur which is always correct in this season of fur-trimmed accessories. In many instances the strip of wide fancy braid constitutes the girdle for a velvet or broadcloth costume. This is edged with narrow bands of fur or colored grosgrain ribbon, and fastened in a variety of effective ways, either with buttons or a metal buckle. Other designs include the beaded straight belt or artistic girdle made of gold cord for the frock of Grecian lines.

Red Cross Can Only Accept Presents for General Distribution.

Colonel Hodgetts, the Canadian Red Cross Commissioner in England, in a cablegram today to the Dominion headquarters in Toronto, draws attention to the fact that the proper way to send Christmas packages to individual soldiers is thru the postoffice. The Red Cross can accept only those presents which are for general distribution in the hospitals. The Canadian War Contingent Association which handles field comforts for the men on active service will also transmit presents for general distribution, but individual parcels are refused.

UP TO MALES TO DEFEND COUNTRY

UNIVERSAL TRAINING

Explains Its Workings and Says Commonwealth Has No Regrets.

The Canadian Club had the greatest turnout in many meetings to greet the Australian Cadets and their leader, Lieut. Simons, at luncheon yesterday. Lieutenant, in his short address, dwelt mostly on the universal training system in force in Australia, and said that in the five years it had prevailed there had not been found a point of regret for its adoption. "It is a system which in no way interferes with a man's personal liberty. To get his training he only spends a few hours of the week, and the only thing he has to do to qualify is to be born. It is a system calculated to make of fighters," he said, "a nation of 'peaceful fighters.' A nation of 'peaceful fighters' is a nation for a man any way. It is in times like these the mother country was in dire need of assistance from her colonies, it made of them a nation of fighters instead of a nation of incompetents."

Pondered Long Over It.

Lieut. Simons said that Australians pondered long over the proposal to try universal training. "It was a bold step, and we are the only English-speaking country where it is in use," he said. "Of course, we have our political economists, and theorists, and others who say it is against all laws of personal freedom, but what is the use of personal freedom if you cannot defend it when it is challenged? Lieut. Simons said volunteer training was tried, but it was not successful. In any event, he said, the experiment of universal training was bound to be of incalculable benefit to the whole British Empire. Drill halls and drill squares and rifle ranges, the lieutenant said, were seen on every hand in Australia, just the same as were the churches and hotels."

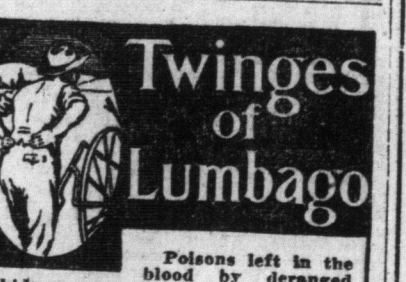

When an Australian coast town attacked it would be effectively defended by every male in it. Referring to Canadian bank clerks and business men could load a magazine rifle in five minutes, let alone use it effectively? "The government of any country says it is up to the males to defend that country, and we in the commonwealth take the view that it is up to the government to instruct them how best to defend it," he said.

ROSES IN BLOOM.

Dozens of roses were in full bloom right out in the open in Alexandra Park, Toronto, yesterday. To have roses flourishing out-of-doors in Canada as late as Nov. 15 is quite remarkable and shows that the summers here are getting longer. Park Superintendent McPherson picked the roses yesterday and gave them away as he was afraid that last night's cold dip might blight them.

Before lunch the cadets were welcomed by Premier Hearst in the legislative chamber. The premier told them their visit was a great aid in the binding together of the empire, and in the present crisis such binding was doubly welcome. Lieut. Simons, in reply, said that Ontario was a large province, but the hearts of the citizens were as large in proportion.
