PLENAURUM SHOWS LARGE BODY OF ORE

Great Stretch of Promising Ground is Still to Be Opened Up.

The report of the McIntyre Porcupine Mines for the fiscal year, 1913, has one very interesting item as to development on the west side of the Plenaureum, close to the Jupiter line. At this point there is a well marked shear zone, and excellent indications of an ore body which can be plainly seen by any one following the wagon road across Plenaureum from Jupiter to Newray. After the long drift from the old McIntyre workings had entered the Plenaureum at this point, a diamond drill was resorted to, and the results were unusually good. In a total distance of 39 feet, some 23 feet of high grade ore was penetrated. One section of six feet gave $32.60, one of seven feet $15.70, and a third of five feet $15.70. The results were all obtained between 20 and 66 to 105 feet in the course of the drill. The details are not sufficient to state exactly what has been discovered. Evidently it is very important. The drill was not being carried forward at a depth of 1000 feet. The hole, for the most part, has been one, must have gone in horizontally, and this would have been a very compact ore body of high grade, and it may be in width. The report adds that at present it is now being driven to determine the exact dimensions and extent of this discovery. On the face of it, it seems to be of prime importance, and it has come only 80 feet from the old McIntyre workings. There is still a great stretch of promising ground to be opened up on the Plenaureum while driving the northeastward. The course of the shear zone. Another, or it may be the same vein system, shows very strong evidence at the boundary of the Plenaureum. Mining who have seen the Plenaureum will no doubt water its further progress with a great deal of interest. It is one of the choice properties of the camp.
