We ontario cabinet and after two hours talk were assured that an end would be made of the practice of receiving second applications for mining claims before the first one was disposed of. More rapid inspection, with extra inspectors if necessary, was also promised, and some elasticity in the interpretation of the law by the inspectors in allowing time for proof of minerals in place. All were agreed that these were the main gauses of complaint, and that the system of discovery and inspection was the best. A request for a branch record office and an assay office at Cobait was left for further consideration.
