Negotiations Are Still Going on to Bring the Trackmen's Strike to a Close.

The Outsiders Were Called Off Before They Got to Queenston Heights.

Still the rain poured down, yet His Excelency, mounted and in civilinal clothes, seemed oblivious of it. Although the men were wet through, it was obviously useless to rurn them in, so the parade proceeded. At the request of the Aujor-General, the brigadier then carried out the movements which the General laid so much stress upon, as applicable to manoeuvres over broken ground, in woods, enclosures or fields. It is practically an adaptation of the system of drill adopted by the Boers in South Africa. The brigade consisted of 800 or 900 men, who manoeuvre over broken ground, in woods, enclosures or fields. The local officials do not know anything new and the regument of time.

His Excellency expressed himself as surprised at the readmens with which the brigade and pleked up the movements.

The day broke grey and gloomy, presaging showers. Yet, nothing daunted, the soiders followed the orders of the Major-General, and half the camp reached the vicinity of Queenston Heights when the order to "call off" the parade was carried seven miles away by Capt. Bell, the General's chief aide.

The promises of the early morning had been fulfilled and the rain came down in torrents. The Major-General, who is credited with ever having the interests of his men at heart, foresaw a damp, wet day, and forbore exposing the men. True, the 3rd Brigade had reached the summit, and was drencaed, but the 4th Brigade for the manual for the most part could be saved. Hence the "call off."

Opinions differ as to the expediency of the Major-General's order, but the fear of the Major-General's order, but t that the military tattoo was an unqualified

At 3 a.m. two officers of the 31st went no the Heights and selected points for the defending party to march on.

At 6.30 the 1st cavality bigade took up a position near 8t. David. The 12th 21st Battainon followed a few minutes afterwards and haited just in front of the monument. Then Queenston Heights were in the position of a brigade of inflatity did not a brigade of inflatity with them were the umpires, Major Fériescue of the 15th Lancers and Major King of the 1st Luncars.

Attacking Party Leaves.

The attacking party began to leave camp at 7.30. The 12th Battailon formed an advance guard and the 34th Battailon followed close on its heels. The 35th and the 35th Battailon formed an advance guard and the 34th Battailon followed close on its heels. The 35th and the 35th Battailon formed and the received the Heights.

At 8.15 precisely the 4th Brigade camp the Nagara-road. The 20th Battailon through Parndise Grove and moved along the Nagara-road. The 20th Battailon was first to appear. Then came the 37th and the 39th. The 20th was belind.

Rain Was the Rub.

For a quarter of an hour the march was a thing of pleasure. The solders swung along in fine style, but presently a few drops of rain made the most hopeful feet uneasy. At 8.30 down came the rain the dead earnest. The une of the 4th Brigade stood it gamely, though they were without their great coats.

At 9.15 the rain ceased and the sun peeped mockingly out of the sombre clouds. Surgeon-Major Nattress rode minutes at 930. Capt. Bell, A.D.C. to the sun who fired the fireworks was not followed to Para at 930. Capt. Bell, A.D.C. to the sun who fired the fireworks was not file at 93th. The sate part of the work of command of the work of command of the southest covery bell were without their great coats.

At 9.15 the rain ceased and the sun peeped mockingly out of the sombre clouds. Surgeon-Major Nattress rode briskly along the road, and encouraged the men with. "Well, I guess we'll have it warm now."

But the Surgeon-Major was no prophet, for scarcely had he spoke

Parade's Cancelled.

A horse going at full speed passed along the lines at 3.30. Capt. Bell, A.D.C. to Major-General Hutton, was the rider. He shouted as he sped along, "Parade's cancelled. You needn't go any further!"

As he flew by the various battalions halted and awaited further orders, for the cancellation came as a shock.

Umpires, Majors McGillivray, Atkinson, Bertram and Thompson galloped away to second the order from headquarters.

When the "call-off" came the Heights were occupied by the defending force. The attacking force had made good progress. The 34th was within two miles of Queenston station. The 12th, the 35th and the 36th were all but at their allotted points. The 44th was half way. The 39th, 37th and 20th were nearest home.

There was no little surprise expressed at the halt, for the rain had moderated the weather, and laid the dust, though making mud holes in spots.

Altogether there were about forty persons connected with the tribunal present. The arbitrators and most of their staff were dressed in frock coats.

There were less than a dozen spectators in the portion of the apartment roped off for the general public and half a dozen ladies, including Mrs. Benjamin Harrison and others belonging to the American party.

The arbitrators took their seats soon after 11 o'clock, Chief Justice Melville E. Parade's Cancelled.

The March Home.

The march home was made in a fitful rainstorm, but the men were cheerful, singing and bowling along merrily. They were sorry the parade was off.

But they had their compensations. The cherrles hung ripe on the neighboring trees The soldiers invited themselves to a vagrant feast. Then, there was a further compensation—a square meal awaited them at camp, and drill was called off for the day. Then, last, but not least, there was a band concert—the tattoo—at night. The men cogliated and were satisfied.
