By Staff Correspondent of the Canadian Press, Limited, (Copyright). Cochrane, Ont., Jan. 6 .- With officers of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police watching the various outlets from the frozen north, with scores and runners despatched by the corps of newspaper correspondents here scouring the different trails which connect ice-bound James Bay with the railway line spanning Canada, and with the special train charteres by the reporters and moving picture men standing in the yard here with steam up and ready to leave for any-where along the Canadian National Railway, immediately the news is flashed out that the three America naval officers, whose coming is eagerly awaited, are within walking dis tance of the steel, Cochrane tonight was sitting back and waiting impatiently news that Lieutenants Hinton Farrell and Kloor, of the United States navy, were little more than 24 hours from home and family.

Federal government assistance in the shape of several husky troopers of Canada's famous mounted police has been granted the neighboring republic, and tonight officers are sta-tioned at Cochrane and at Mattice 110 miles farther west, ready, under orders, to burn up the telegraph wires with the information of the safe arrival at the railway line of the trio of balloonists, whose experimental trip carried them away beyond the confines of their own land and right across hundreds of miles of primeval forest, to the edge of the Arctic Sergeant A. Washington, Jan. 6.—Supporters of the Fordney emergency tariff were given encouragement today by the announcement of Chairman Penrose of the senate finance committee that he would use his influence to obtain National Railways Believed to passage of the bill. The Pennsylvania senator, in a formal statement, issued after his committee opened hearings on the measure, soured his Republican colleagues that he would join them in pushing the legislation thru at this session, but declared for modification of the rates carried by the bill as it passed the house.

Senate opponents of the Fordney bill, however, were not disheartened by the Penrose announcement. They were inclined to accept the public definition of his attitude as a political more or less similar to the Canadian move, while Democratic senators numbered among the opponents asserted the statement was issued as a reply to Republican senators on the committee cupied as a ticket office for the conwho had demanded that Mr. Penrose solidated Canadian Northern, Grand say, in effect, whether he would stand Trunk, Intercolonial, etc.; for the "Frills and Fads." Toronto board of education held a largely-attended inaugural meeting last night. Many visitors watched the proceedings from the seats in and below the gallery. Palms and beautiful flowers added to the festive appearance of the function.

Former Trustees W. O. McTaggart and W. Houston, W. C. Wilkinson, for many years secretary to the board, were present.

An outstanding feature was the conspicuous absence of the defeated ex-chairman, Dr. John Noble. His young and gallant successor. Major B. S. Wemp, was a watchful and studious participant in the proceedings.

The election of chairman was placid.

The secretary called upon the trustees to voice, in turn, their choice for chairman, and each, on rising, declared for Trustee J. McClelland. Chairman McClelland, in thanking the trustees for the honor of being ap-pointed presiding officer, said: "If I ead the times aright, we have a duty to perform and we must perform it properly. The board of education is, I think, the most important public body in the municipal life of Toronto. We want the affairs of the board of education conducted in the best way possible.
