MYRKLE-HARDER COMPANY PRESENT THE GIRL PATSY

The Myrkle-Harder Company presented The Girl Patsy at the Opera House last night. The four acts of the play abounded in merriment with a vein of melodrama. In the role of the "town constable," W. Flagg was the chief laugh-provoker. Frank Christie, as the hare-lipped gardener and town inebriate, was also excellent. The constable's inquisitive methods of deducing criminals were very laughable. Louis Anker, as the artist engaged to the judge's accepted daughter, yet who falls in love with Patsy, the county charge, who is the genuine daughter of the judge, filled the role acceptably. John Bertin was the butler, who elopes with the judge's daughter, and is captured stealing the wedding gifts in the residence for the marriage of the artist and the daughter the following morning. The hair-lipped employe was accused of the crime, but through the detection of Patsy, who was taken into the house as a maid, the guilty man was exposed in his place of concealment behind a screen. Miss Myrkle as the girl who, when an infant, was stolen from her cradle at the home of the judge, and another child substituted, but who is finally restored to her rights, was adept in the portrayal of the part. Helen Devere as fictitious and haughty daughter, who leaves with the butler, on the eve of her wedding to the artist, was also good. Amelia Baird as the French maid, added to the comedy, and Beth Summerville, in a minor role, fulfilled anticipations. Richard Marsden was a typical judge. The balance of the cast interpreted their parts in a finished manner. W. Flagg and Frank Christie appeared in an impromptu specialty and the Bedell Bros. repeated their act.

Tonight the play will be Tess of Tennessee.

HARRY BENNETT MAKES ANOTHER HIT AT NICKEL

In the picturesque garb of the 48th Highlanders—the feather bonnet and a that—Harry Bennett made another strong impression on thousands of hearers at the Nickel yesterday in Harry Lauder's When I Get Back Again to Bonnie Scotland. In the funny song, Stop Ye're Ticklin' Jock, he was equally entertaining and brought forth much laughter. Mr. Bennett is growing in popularity rapidly; he is the most amusing performer the Nickel has ever engaged. Today and Saturday he will continue in the Bonnie Scotland number. Saturday afternoon he will perform for the children three times.

Today the Nickel will have a brand new show of pictures again, including, Edison's pretty story of a child, entitled Left Out; two Pathe comedies and an engrossing drama. Miss Annie Edwards will sing The Message of the Violets, from the Prince of Pilsen, and Mr. Courtnais' number Let's Go Into a Picture Show, is a novelty.

STRONG HUMAN DRAMA AT THE STAR THEATRE

The Star is to the front again today with a change of programme that will please everybody. The quality of the pictorial features being shown in this cosy little new house is causing a great deal of comment and patronage is large in consequence. Today and tomorrow the following new films will be the bill:—"The Cord of Life," a drama of intense human interest; "The Sculptor's Miracle," "An Attack on The Mail," and "The Clubman and the Tramp." Miss Von Branders will sing and there will be bright new music. Saturday's matinee will be a special feature show for the children.

A BIG GOLD NUGGET

Romantic Story of One Found in the Far North Weighing 36 Ounces

Ottawa, March 25—A 36-ounce gold nugget, valued at $600, and with a romantic story of discovery behind it, lies in the vault of the Geological Survey. This wonderful nugget has just been received after a somewhat roundabout trip from the Dease river district in the Far North, where it was found. Much the size and shape of a large clam shell, the nugget fits snugly upon the palm of the hand, but its three pounds is what appears most astounding to any person not familiar with the great weight of the precious metal. Sometime last year two prospectors had staked a claim on the Dease river in Northern British Columbia. On the claim an old shack had been built long before and was at the time unoccupied. One day it was burnt to the ground and the prospectors in raking among the smoking embers in a mood of curiosity, came across an old sack containing a number of unusually large nuggets and an old note book. Following the code of honor which exists among miners, the men turned the nuggets and the notebook over to the bank at the nearest station. From the contents of the notebook it was learned by the bank officials that Mr. Aemilius Jarvis, of Toronto, was an interested party in the expedition which had discovered these nuggets and consequently they were turned over to him. Upon receiving them Mr. Jarvis sent them to the mint in Ottawa, to have them melted and their value credited. Dr. Jas Bonar, director of the mint, noticing the remarkable size of one of the nuggets, communicated with Mr. R. W. Brock, director of the Geological Survey, with the result that Mr. Brock decided to secure the nugget as a specimen for the survey. Mr. Jarvis was paid the value of the nugget and it now reposes in the survey vault. A number of valuable nuggets have also been received at the survey from Mr. R. L. Broadbent, now in the Kootenay district making a collection of mineral specimens for the Seattle Exposition. The nuggets received were found on Wild Horse Creek in the East Kootenay. A model of the 36-ounce nugget from the Dease river will also be sent to the Seattle Exposition.

LOGICAL INFERENCE.

(From M. A. P.)

Lord Lucas, who is so ably supporting Mr. Haldane in the Territorial scheme, tells a good story of a teacher in a Midland town noted for his patriotic fervor. One day he was explaining to his class what he thought was a sad lack of the proper spirit in the average English boy. 'Now, Tommy,' he said, 'tell me what you would thing if you saw a nion Jack waving proudly over the field of battle.' 'I should think,' was the logical reply of Thomas, 'that the wind was blowing.'

TAFT AND ROOSEVELT

New President Presents Strong Contrast, Says Goldwin Smith

The character of the new president of the United States apparently presents a strong contrast to that of his predecessor, writes Goldwin Smith in the Weekly Sun. President Taft is described as a man of solid qualities, cool judgment, and calm, though firm, and resolute character. As a candidate, he talked no claptrap, and made no catchpenny appeals. He has to deal, if not with an acute crisis, with a general critical state of things. The circumstances of the nation, and with them its character, have been undergoing vital changes, due not only to the vast increase of heterogeneous immigration, while the nation itself is not prolific, but to changes of external relations and their influence on the national disposition, as well as to natural effects of a great civil war. The war with Spain, made, as a leading member of the Republican party said, to keep the party in power, was a turning point made more decisive by the calamitous conquest and annexation of the Philippines. That which was once a great peaceful community trading with all nations, fighting or conspiring with none, is now becoming involved in diplomatic entanglements, and vying in its military and naval expenditures, and in the huge financial burdens which they entail, with the most ambitious and wasteful of the builders of Dreadnoughts. Consequent on this bellicosity is the serious financial situation. Mr. Taft is too sensible and too sound an economist, we hope, to attempt to deal with it by such quackery as protection, the real effect of which, as we must know, is simply to take money out of the pocket of the consumer and put into those of the capitalist. May the president's reign be prosperous and happy!

243,782 WOMEN DON'T WANT VOTES

Anti-Suffrage Petitions in the British Parliament—Premier's Promises.

London, March 25—The Adult Suffrage Bill, which was read and shelved in the House of Commons is regarded by the Suffragettes as cancelling the possibility of the franchise being granted to women at this session. The measure was introduced despite their protests. They know there is no chance of adult suffrage in England today. They have always demanded suffrage only on the same terms as men have it. Therefore this bill was designed really to prevent them from achieving it for the present.

Mr. Asquith, in discussing the bill, said it was well known that on the woman suffrage question the government was not of one opinion and it had never been made a government question. He, himself, believed, as did most of his colleagues, in the necessity for reform in the present franchise apart from any question of sex. He wished to reaffirm what he had previously said, viz., that the government intended to introduce a measure for general electoral reform. These veiled promises did not assuage the Suffragette wrath, for while Mr. Asquith was speaking four attendants carried in four huge bundles of paper. They were a petition from the anti-Suffragettes, signed by 243,782 women, praying the House of Commons to reject any measure granting the parliamentary franchise to women. The document was received with much laughter and was then gravely carried out again.

HUNTED AND HUNTERS.

"Is it really true," asked Miss Chollus, "that you're engaged to Mr. Richley?"

"It is," calmly replied Miss Bute.

"My," exclaimed Miss Chollus; "he was a great catch."

"I beg your pardon," retorted the other, haughtily, "catcher."

HIS SUGGESTION.

Wifey—Henry, what shall I give up during Lent?

Hubby—Well, Grace, I wish you would give up coaxing me for an auto, but I know you won't.
