

FOR LOVE OF HIS WIFE AND FAMILY

Ukrainian, Who Fought With Canadians, Hero of a Thrilling Experience.

Ottawa, Ont., Nov. 20.—(By Canadian Press)—Andrew Malardack, now of this city, a Ukrainian, is the hero of a thrilling story of family love and sacrifice. He came to Canada nine years ago, just before the Great War, leaving behind him his wife and two children.

The call to arms found Malardack a true patriot, and he went over seas with the Canadian Expeditionary Force, and he was with the Canadians at the Somme, and when peace was declared came back to Ottawa.

But the ties of family held his heart bound to those who waited in the old land, and by dint of hard work and frugal living he managed to scrape enough money together to return to Europe to find his family. On June 21 last he left Ottawa for Roumania, with the intention of smuggling his children and wife across the border and bringing them to Canada.

The family lived in the province of Podolia, in a small village called Braga. Just across the river from this village lies the free land of Roumania, and over this river, when the night falls down to cover the risks, was shut to messengers with Russian subjects. Down to this barrier the wife was led by those who knew Malardack, and there, and he had his first conversation with her in that way, trying to persuade her to take a chance and cross the river with the children.

Money was paid to secret agents to bring her over, but the fear of the Bolshevik spy made her refuse the chance. The husband was not to be beaten, however. He crossed into Poland, where it was reported to be easier to get over the frontier into Russia secretly. Malardack made his way to the frontier and by paying a woman 12,000 Polish marks, he was shown a way over the boundary, and after a walk of forty miles in his bare feet, he reached his family.

He was hidden for two days by his wife, and then by night returned to the frontier where he waited for them. After a day the wife and children reached his hiding place and crossed the river with him, after having bribed two Soviet guards.

Andrew Malardack and his happily reunited family reached Ottawa on November 4, with little more than the clothes on their backs.
