The Evening Chit-Chat

By RUTH CAMERON

I WANT to have a little chat today with the people who write letters to me suggesting subjects for me to talk about in this column.

And the first thing I want to say and the most emphatic is—THANK YOU.

Of course I'm "delighted," as our good friend of the obvious teeth would say, to know what you people want discussed in this column.

An actor, no matter how good his talents and his intentions were, would probably find it hard to please if he played to an invisible and inaudible audience, and that's what we writer folks are always doing. So you can see that any epistolary echo of the feelings of that audience is always very welcome.

And never more so than when it brings a constructive suggestion.

Please keep it up, you folks who have taken enough interest in me to suggest some topics you'd like to hear discussed. And please take it up, you people who have thought of something that "would be good for Ruth Cameron to write about," but haven't quite gotten around to putting it down on paper and sending it along.

One more "Please."

— And that is, please don't be offended when I don't write on the topics you suggest.

Much as I'd like to oblige, that isn't always possible.

It isn't that the subjects aren't just as good as many of my own. It's just that I'm not a penny in the dot machine into which you can drop a topic and inevitably get a column of remarks. I have to feel that I have something to say.

For instance, sometime ago someone asked me to please write on "The detestable and filthy habit of chewing gum in public." I haven't complied with the request because it seemed to me that anything I might say would be so ridiculously obvious. I don't believe I have a reader who doesn't know that it is bad form to chew gum in public, and anyone who does it in spite of that knowledge, will undoubtedly continue to do it, no matter what I may say.

I am also asked to write about some special cases which do not seem to me to have enough of the universal in them to make them interesting. For instance, after writing about the unkind way in which the dependent, the maiden aunt or helpless grandchild or grandchild, is often treated—an unkindness which I think anyone will admit is cruelly common—I was requested to write about "the person, entirely dependent on a man for absolutely everything, who, on being taken into his household and asked to become a member of the family and take his share of the family life, declines to do so, but perpetually demands to be treated as a guest of honor, acting insulted if not so treated, who, in short, if not always and ever considered before everyone else, raises walls to any friend or stranger willing to give ear to his complaints."

Such people may exist, but I certainly don't think the type is common enough to make a denunciation of it helpful or interesting to any large number of readers.

I am also asked to write on subjects which cannot be treated in a general way, because they are of a class in which "circumstances alter cases." For instance: "How late a man should stay when he comes to call." "How long a time ought to elapse between a first and second visit." "My correspondents occasionally inquire, 'Do you live up to all you write? If you do, you must be an angel.'"

Of course I don't.

The lines of conduct I suggest are my ideals. Do you know anyone who lives up to all his ideals?

But I think I can truthfully say one thing. I never write anything I don't thoroughly believe.

THE BYE-ELECTION

Bourassa and Monk, Nationalist and Conservative, Made the Wildest Sectional Appeals to the Habitant in the Drummond
Arthabaska Contest

(By Fred Williams, of the Ottawa Free Press Editorial Staff)

Victoriaville, Que., Nov. 1.—The part which the official Conservative machine has been playing in this campaign is difficult to ascertain. The feeling in Montreal especially among the English-speaking Conservatives, is that the party machine, in the French Liberals let you see that the whole machinery of the French Conservative party has been thrown into the Bourassa-Monk party, and that if Bourassa, Lavergne and Monk have been able to secure any success at all they have to thank the Conservative machine.

Certain it is that Mr. Monk has carried with him all the fighting men of his party in the Montreal district and Senator Landry in the Quebec district have done their part.

To those who know the real Laurier, the part which his personality is playing in this campaign would be amusing, if it were not so dangerous. The premier is represented as a blood-thirsty monster who wants to conclude his life's work by walking through blood of the Canadians.

And it is a fact that just before the nomination meeting in Drummondville on Thursday last, one of the former came up to a Liberal M. P., and solemnly asked him if Laurier had gone back upon his people, and wanted their blood.

But what else can be expected when Mr. Bourassa uses such language as this, spoken at St. Hyacinthe in August last, and now widely distributed throughout the constituency:—

"At the harvest time this paternal government will knock at your door and say to the father, if still robust, and to all his sons: 'Leave your homes for England, or a group of schemers demand your death and your blood in order to increase its territory or to promote an enterprise.'"

Have a Precedent

But this is not the first time in which Laurier has been held up to the electors of Drummond and Arthabaska as a blood-thirsty monster.

A similar course was pursued by the famous Charles Thibault in the now historic campaign of 1877. "They told me that Thibault then declared 'They tell me Laurier has been made a monster but they do not tell us whether he has become a Presbyterian or a Methodist,' but he went on to assert that Laurier had signed a compact with Satan to destroy the French Canadians, and in 'proof' thereof pulled out of his pocket an assurance policy and shouted: 'See, it is signed with his blood,' and pointed to the writing in red ink on the policy.

On another occasion during the same campaign he told the habitants that Laurier did not baptize his children (of course never mentioning that he has no children), but that he did wear a scapular, and challenged him to show it, if he had one.

Some Bourassa Yarns

But grotesque though the Thibault speeches were, they are fully equalled, if not excelled by some of the statements in the Bourassa campaign pamphlet of 1910. Take these passages for instance:—

"Not satisfied with having betrayed the liberties guaranteed by the constitution, Laurier would now take from us the money of our children, until the fearful day of war, when he would take with this money so painfully acquired, the blood of our children also."

And it is this shameful law, against which we invoke the act of the constitution, a law which sacrifices acquired rights, a law blood, a ridiculous law if there ever has been one, a law which can be called habitant law, the law by which Laurier now desires to take the electors of Arthabaska by surprise.

"If the navy costs $200,000,000, the population of Canada being 8,000,000 inhabitants each person living in the dominion will have to pay $25. The father of a family having a wife and one child would pay $75; if he had four children, he would pay $325; if eight children, $650; if ten or fifteen children, $800 and $450."

"But the blood of our children is another thing. A navy costs millions, but it also eats up flesh and blood."

"When the volunteers shall have been destroyed in their old warships and when the law comes to demand of the mother of a family, after the sacrifice of her eldest son, tell me, Mr. Laurier, if your conscription will respect her tears and her sorrow."

This same pamphlet tells of a supposed habitant who had the picture of Laurier on the walls of his house, alongside of that of Christ, but who kept it there "despite the betrayal of the schools in Manitoba, in Alberta and Saskatchewan," despite the flooding of Canada by "hordes of miserable foreigners," because he believed it "better a hundred times to be sacrificed by a Laurier who loves you than by a Borden who would sell you because he hates you." But Laurier proved a traitor and so the picture was taken down from beside that of the Christ and the crucifix, and presumably there is now a vacant space upon that wall.

Fielding the "Imperialist"

The Bourassaes, led by Mr. Bourassa himself, are laying much stress upon the fact that Mr. Fielding is "more of an imperialist than Laurier," and that if he succeeds "the aged prime minister" and war should break out, Mr. Fielding would forthwith despatch the Canadian navy to the scene of hostilities without consulting the people or parliament. In the English provinces, Mr. Fielding is represented as being as "disloyal" as Laurier, so here again the double-faced game is being played.

Mr. Bourassa has said that the war will not break out until 1912 and he quotes Commander Roper as his authority, and then goes on to tell his audience that the delay is designed to give "Laurier time to finish his work" and "die in peace." Then will come the conflict. But the Liberals retort that other troublemakers have predicted Laurier's death, and while they are dead he is very much alive and in better health than for many years past.

Another Scare

Admiral Kingsmill may not know it; Commander Roper may be bound for the Pacific coast in blissful ignorance of the fact; but the truth is that the two heads of the naval staff are the "bogeymen" with whom the Bourassaes operate to scare the habitant into a vote against the navy. Taking their cue from Armand Lavergne, the minor speakers for Gilbert are asserting that Laurier is paying both Kingsmill and Roper $50,000 a year each for their services in converting the son of the peaceful habitant into food for cannon.

It is in vain that it is pointed out that the admiral gets a salary of $3,000 a year, and that Commander Roper's remuneration is only $3,500. The lie has gone forth into the parishes and may be doing its work.

All Saints' day being a holiday in the province of Quebec the electors and the politicians are taking the advantage of the beautiful Indian summer day to get together. The whole constituency is election mad. But the political managers seem to be agreed that the Drummond end of the constituency is solid for Perreault and Laurier and are consequently devoting their attention to Arthabaska, where the feeling is most keen.
